With the summer nearly over, we had our first meeting tonight, it will be a night I will long remember. We had a large group who came to have their fun, a good night for the wives who came for the first time. But what a night for the Power and light co. to find that there was a gas leak right in front of the house. I was a little upset because we had to use a shuttle system from home to the Motel and bring the girls in thru the garage. For this I want to Thank Sue [REDACTED] for the fine job she did shuttling. Because of the large crowd and the problem we had Bill and Jim had to leave Wilma and Sue in the closet.

I'll let you know who came to visit tonight: Sue and Betty from Rochester, N.Y., Joan and Gail from Granville, N.Y., Phyllis from Lockport, N.Y. Denny from Peekskill, N.Y., Sussane from Clifton Park, N.Y., Crystal from Menands, N.Y., Joan from Colonie, N.Y., Francis from Henrietta, N.Y., Lee from Buffalo, N.Y., Jean from Peru, N.Y., Arlene from Troy, N.Y., Winnie from Schenectady, N.Y., Kathy from Syracuse, N.Y., Elanda from Rome, N.Y., Germaine and Elaine from Poultoney, Vermont, Joyce from Norwich, Conn., Cynthia from E. Norwich, Conn., Sonya from E. Norwich, Conn., Gloria and Ann from Wilton, Conn., Pat and Karen from E. New Brunswick, N. J., Michaline from Canada, Michelle Ann from Sommerville, Mass., Paula and Kathy from Lanesboro, Mass., Ronda from Stoneham, Mass., Sue from Chelsea, Mass., Gloria and Dena from Pittsfield, Mass., Sharon and Rose ~~176~~ from Flushing L.I., Jenny and Lucy from Bay Shore, L.I., Rogeer from Bay Shore, L.I., Alice and Connie from Gulf Breeze, Florida. and Wilma and I. To date this is the largest crowd we have had. I am only Happy to say that I was very pleased to meet Rose, Kathy, Elaine, and Ann who were here for the first time. They all seemed to be enjoying themselves. There were also a few new T.V.'s, Lee & Gloria Gloria, one of the new T.V.'s, played the organ and sang for the girls, Elanda and Sonya, Cynthia and Kathy did some fancy dancing and had the girls applauding them.

Our big entertainer for the Evening was Crystal [REDACTED] who gave us one of her fine readings from her letter from her Aunt Harriet, it seems the letters get better as the months roll by. We thank you Crystal for your fine entertainment, with all these gals doing their bit, it made for a very pleasant evening.

I want to thank Betty and Denny for the help in preparing the meal for tonight. We had Meat Loaf, Baked Madroni, Corn, Cole Slaw, Pickles, Applesauce, pickled olives, sliced tomatoes, strawberry shortcake, coffee.

I am only glad that every thing was all right, with all the confusion of bringing the girls in the back way, and having to keep them in the back room as the power and light men were in and out of the kitchen.

I am glad for Paula that her G.G. could make the meeting and see for herself that the group are just a good friendly group and enjoy just sitting and talking with one another. Hope to see you again Kathy.

Thanks to Michelle and Dennie for going out with us to Celebrate our 30th anniversary. Betty and Sue come from Rochester this time every year to take us out. The 6 of us really had a good time. Thanks to all the gals who sent us a card.

I hope all you girls out there had a good summer, and do hope to see some of you in the coming months.

Next month is Fantasia Affair so I don't think we will be to crowded, so all you girls that go have a great time and enjoy your nine days of living as a lady.

It is always a pleasure for me to meet the new wives and new T.V.'s that come out of the closet. I know it is hard for them not to be nervous, so I do my best to put them at ease.

You all might want to know that Michell Ann is a good gal to have as a friend, as Wilma and I found out. She has really been a god send, as she has helped us up on the Island to get our plumbing in and electricity, and built counter tops and cabinets and put up our automatic wood stove for the winter.

Michelle, Wilma and I will take this time to Thank you from the bottom of our hearts. You are one of the best.

Well I believe I've run out of time on my sheet, so once again I say I am glad to see all of you back again. Untill next month I'll say God Bless you all keep you safe and happy my love to all

P . S . We had 42 people in all.
 2 from New Jersey, 2 from Florida, 5 from Long Island, 7 from Mass.,
 1 from Canada, 5 from Conn., 2 from Vermont, and 18 from N.Y., also we had 13 lovely wives. W I L M A

How To LOOK In A Picture A LA FEMME?

Some pictures of TVs that I have seen lately look positively horrible, (of course the camer can only take what it see's) certainly not a credit to ~~z~~ to the many TVs who wish and do look truly feminine. Items catching my eye that bother me (yes, and these coments some times also apply to WILMA as well) are:

1. Knees and legs together while standing or sitting
 2. Knees may be crossed while sitting but do not try to have the one foot so far out in front that it appears to be an action shot of you just after you launched a football into orbit.
 3. Standing should be with one foot slightly in front of the other with the heel of the forward foot against the instep of the other foot.
 4. Snowing down South—though we all like pretty lacy slips, they are not attractive showing below the hem of our skirts and dresses. Showing through sheer blouses, that is great, but below hems—No!
 5. Though we are not hair stylists and may never have styled a wig in our life, a speaking aquantence with a good wig brush and a few gentle strokes can make all the difference in the world on how our hair looks
 6. Sheer light shade hose are great, but only if a two week growth of peach fuz or pig bristle doesn't show through.
 7. While we all like to work on the appearance of our eyes and love bright red lips, we seem to ignore the five o'clock shadow showing through our facial make-up. Again, paste make-ups always cover better than liquid and a final touch up with a good brushing powder can do wonders with the masculine give away. Remember, the camera has a strong tendency to disclose that which we think wont show upon looking at ourselves in the mirror.
 8. A good manicure of our nails is as much an asset to our masculine self as it is to our girl self. Well filed, trimmed and clean nails and cuticles always look good but even more so on our girl selves. Try a bit of hand lotion after you are all through will give you softer looking hands and besides they will even feel better and smell good.
 9. Finally, though we all love mini skirts, not too many of us have a figure or the legs that make such a costume attractive. You will be surprised how much an extra inch of skirt will improve your total all Girl image. Yes, and particularly when we bend over with a straight leg rather than bent at the knee as the gals always do.

Who says women are not very mechanical? I just got the cat's tail out of the vacuum cleaner!
If I hear a cylinder knocking, I answer it. And if a manifold comes apart, I fold it up again. If an engine throws a rod, I throw it right back.

A Few Things We TVs Could do Without:

1. A necktie for Chrisymas.
2. The TV who roams outside where he might be seen & decides to remove herwig.
3. The TV who threatens to comit suercide because of intolerance at home and does not do anything about it.
4. Fredericks hip & fanny pads who leave a horrible depression between hip and fanny.
5. The TV who complains about his big waistline but will do nothing about it.
6. The TV who can't even sew a button on a blouse.
7. A TV addressing other TVs(all dressed)as "you guys".
8. The wife of a TV who says "Do you have to get dressed today".
9. The TV who is unhappy unless her plans include "going out".
- 10 The lack of 20/20 vision in most TVs when they appraise themselves in the mirror.
- 11 The TV who says "I just put on a little powder for my make up and it don't look bad".

Please do not be mad, for all I have just said goes double for WILMA.

I have a friend who thinks she's liberated because her husband lets her work the controls of their electric blanket.

I think it's hysterical to find 20 words in the dictionary to describe a woman who nags, but not one word to describe a man who nags. A man who nags is called an efficiency expert.

What to Do with Your Old Falsies

They were once such a vital part of you ... now they're an antiquity?! Cosmo's editors have these suggestions for their recycling.

- Pin on lots of buttons and wear as "his" and "hers" beanies.
- Cut them up into dozens of cornpads.

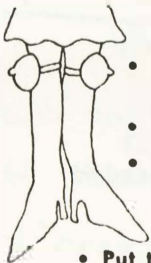

- Use with cleanser to scrub kitchen sink.
- Fold and put under rickety table legs.
- Stick to the wall as a doorstop.
- Encase in plastic as a piece of pop art.
- Cover with velvet (or spray-paint) and use as pincushions.
- Dye fuchsia and stack in a pyramid arrangement on coffee table.
- Glue to bumper of your Mustang.

- Cover with fake fur and turn into earmuffs.
- Stuff into toes of shoes to help keep their shape.
- Wait for pomp-adours to come back and use as rats to bolster hair.
- Insert as shoulder pads.
- Starch first, make holes in them and use as frogs for holding flowers.

- Crumble (most likely they're already crumbling!) and use to stuff a sofa pillow.
- Have bronzed and give one to the lover who digs you au naturel, the other to an obvious male chauvinist to use as an ashtray.

- Glue to his bedroom doorknob to supply a daily thrill.
- Glue to his shower wall.
- Make into a collage along with old girdles, garters, corset stays, crinoline petticoats, spike heels, gym bloomers and other once-chic tortures of the past.

- Use as knee warmers or knee guards.
- Give them to your mother.
- Give them to your favorite transvestite.
- Throw them away.

- Put them back in your bra. ☹️

A pharmacist at the Toronto plant, reports the Canadian Press, explained that these effects may not become evident for two or three months and take just as long to disappear.

letters to the editor

Dear Helen & Wilma:

How have you been enjoying the summer? Well, I hope. I heard that Michelle spent some time with you and got her ears pierced. I wish I had the nerve!

In my own little way I've been making some good headway. First off, I've got my wife to accept me as a TG and now I can keep all my pretties upstairs in the closet instead of growing mildew in old suitcases in the basement. My son went off for two long week-ends back-packing and so I had the run of the house en femme, with full approval, a few helpful hints but with the loss of a few things like wigs and one-size-fits-all sweaters which she claimed as payola. She was quite aghast at first, not only at my general appearance, but also at the size and scope of my wardrobe and armory of cosmetics. I found - as I'm sure so many others of us have - that the hardest part of all is to convince unbelievers that we are not a bunch of fags running around patting each other's fannies. And my wife is no exception. I hope to bring her along to a forthcoming gathering - I think it will do much to allay her fears.

The other "triumph" was the aftermath of meeting with Leslie Qualls in Boston, in which I left her apartment on Beacon Street, fully dressed (pants, Luv, not a micro-mini!) and drove all the way back to Lanesborough. I passed without question both at a gas stop on the Mass Turnpike and again at the toll-booth (where the toll-taker happened to be a girl.) It was a super turn-on and you should have heard the truckers trying to get me to talk on my CB! All I needed was to have a flat and it would all have been over.

Leslie is a charmer of course and what she doesn't know about TVs and the occult is not worth knowing. I'm interested in both and I plan to have many more meetings with her and her very well-informed husband.

Being "off the hook" is indeed a happy state of affairs. An hour after I got it all out in the open, the clothesline was full to capacity with hosiery, lingerie, pants, skirts, dresses and blouses...I was off to a clean start...so to speak. I also worked-out a fairly foolproof "fire drill" in the event of unscheduled visitors dropping in on us unannounced. And one of the neighbors must still be wondering who the hell the tall blonde was who was hanging a couple of nighties out on the line to dry!

I have an idea for the newsletter which you may or may not go for, but I thought that as we have so many readers, it might be of interest to run "Member Profiles" from time to time. I realize that not all of us by any means care to make public our private lives and what we do, but some of us might be so inclined and so I'm sending you mine, more as an example rather than an outright invitation to print it. I might add that I would have no objection whatever if you did run it!

I'm looking forward very much to our September gathering and, as I said, I hope to have my other half along - I think she'll be delighted...I know I will.

↙ I'd make a great detective. I'm always looking for clues. Once I found a long red hair on my husband's coat. I knew right away he'd kissed an Irish setter.

Love,
Paula

CHICAGO, IL. The move to remove the law against cross-dressing as part of the obscenity ordinance was tabled by the city's finance committee. Although delayed, action is expected to be made before the end of the year.

Dear Wilma and Helen,

The latest issue of the "Journal" was waiting for me when I got in from work this afternoon and---as usual---I devoured every word of it. Then I read it again. Thank you, again, for your efforts to serve the TV world. Very much needed and vastly appreciated by a heck of a lot of people.

I would, also, like to thank you for the personal note that you included with my copy of the "Journal"..... I feel real guilty about your doing this, for it takes time away from the more important things that you people have to do for the most of the club members.

What is the secret of your success in the TV world, as the central and focal point of our interest??? It seems to me, from the reading of the issues of the "Journal", that it is a combination of two things. (1) The proximity of the members, a lot of which can visit your home and attend the meetings, (2) The interest that you take in each member, (3) the idea that is projected---and very evident---that what you are doing is for love of the TV movement and personnel, and not for profit---nor to "rip them off"---as evidenced by some other organizations. As best said in Biblical terms, which I cannot quote, "Love generates love----" and "Bread cast upon the waters-----".

From your Journal, and your mailing lists, I have been blessed with one of the best friends that a person can have. This person, Velvet (in Los Angeles, Calif.), has become one of my best friends, and thousands of miles separate us from being able to visit, except whenever her business takes her through the wilds of Tennessee. We do understand each other in the business world (Though she is more learned than I am), and our interests in the TV world are similar, I am sure, i.e.--we love to dress--each in her own fashion and be with one another, to enjoy the company of another heterosexual TV, take pictures, talk, make numerous changes of clothing. Probably the worst part of the whole thing is the fact that we each consider ourselves a good cook, and we go all out to try to provide a meal that is really good----and neither one will eat. (Shameful!!!!)

My two other good friends came to me by Virginia (bless the memory of what she WAS and what she DID in the 1960's). Lee (in Ark.) and Julie (in Ill.) have been my real good friends through the years, male and female, whichever role they chose. They, their mates, and families are splendid people.

I hope that you have a good vacation, God knows you deserve one, and you will be able to resume your needed role in the Fall.

Marriage has its good side. It teaches you loyalty, forbearance, self-restraint and many other qualities you wouldn't need if you stayed single.

Love,

Dear Wilma and Helen,

Just a note to say hello and hope that you are both well.

As you may have guessed by now, our newsletter, "Hose and Heel" has been temporarily discontinued. I hope that we will resume its publication in the fall, but that, at this point is suspect. There seems to be a definite lack of interest in the newsletter and we want to determine it's need or it's demand.

I want to thank you for continuing to send yours to us; we do enjoy reading about the TVIC girls of Albany. Your group is such a really delightful one... well organized... well attended... well disciplined and well thought of. We have enjoyed our visits with you during the past two years and look forward to future visits. Our vacation plans have not been formulated, as yet, for this summer. It is difficult, at this time, to plan a visit with you and your girls, but we do hope that we can work it in. It has been the highlight of our vacation during the past two summers.

The enclosed is a newspaper clipping from a recent edition of the Washington Post and I thought that you may enjoy reading it.

Our very best to you both and continued successes with the TVIC Girls.

Sincerely,
Helen [redacted] (Rho Sorority)

Men wear hats to cover cold heads, hot heads and bald heads and to keep their toupees from departing in high winds—all very foolish reasons. Women wear hats for sound, logical, rational reasons—to make them look good.

If God had wanted me to spend my life in the kitchen, She would have coated me with Teflon and given me rubber gloves for hands.

Dear Wilma

Like many of TVIC's remote members I hope to attend one of your meetings in the fall. Since my only visit with Helen and yourself last May (1976) I have joined a "TV" organization here in Chicago called Tri-Sigma / Chi Chapter (i.e., the Society for the Second Self). While I don't fully concur with their stated philosophy (they are basically anti-transsexual) I have developed many close friends in Tri-Sigma.

We have approximately ten to twelve regular members in attendance at most meetings who have achieved various levels of dressing. All of our people are acknowledged heterosexuals and most are married. Much of the discussions at the meetings seem to center on traditional male and family topics.

I tend to be one of the group's deeper thinking theoreticians and definitely am more concerned with the whys and where-fors of being a transvestite. My opinions are generally highly regarded. I am very interested not only in how we each got here, but where are we going and to what level does a transvestite wish to improve "herself." Does she want to —

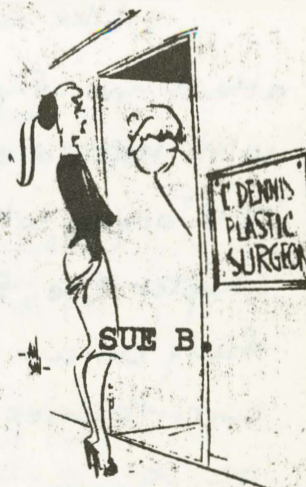

- A. Continue to dress in mommy's clothes;
- B. Become reasonably well accomplished to the point where she can wear her favorite things appropriately in the presence of other TV's or in the privacy of her home or motel room; or
- C. Does she really want to pass and be able to do many of the things in public that women do?

I am happy to say that I have attained the level of "C" above and am quite proud of my appearance and public demeanor.

I owe much of this success to the fact that I now live alone with the attendant unlimited opportunity to dress when the motivation hits me (which is usually 2 to 3 times a week) and my recent employment as a female impersonator on the weekends at a small club in one of Chicago's southern suburbs. This latter experience has been a major aid in building my confidence since my fellow entertainers took a lot of time and care to teach me how to upgrade my appearance to the level of "real". They were very patient and I will always be thankful to them for their understanding. I have always tried to accept their criticism from a constructive viewpoint.

"Thanks for a lovely evening, pal. I gotta go get out of my wife's clothes before she gets home."

"I need a lift."

Once I entered "the business" (entertaining as a female impersonator) and it became fairly well known, I was not only able to regularly visit many of Chicago's better show clubs but was accepted very easily by many of the city's leading entertainers. This was important because through them I have been able to learn about the action of female hormones on the male body and what is involved in the elimination of facial hair through electrolysis as far as the actual physical impact is concerned (I hate to shave, anyway). Since many of these kids are transsexual candidates it has been very interesting to hear what their goals and aspirations are for themselves following surgery.

However, if you want an honest opinion, once you get beneath the glamour of it all and the show-biz aura it becomes painfully apparent that these people are prisoners of a system which pays very poorly ($10 to $30 per night depending on your level of talent - which really means how big are your breasts and how sexy can you act); contains a great many people who have very little understanding of themselves or life; and who become virtual slaves to the sexual desires of male customers whose only intention is to exploit them for their own pleasure.

I am thankful that I had the experience of working in the business just to gain the preceding understanding (and to substantially upgrade my appearance to the level of "passably"), but am even more thankful that I don't have to make my living doing it. Like most glamorous occupations, once you get behind the glitter, you find out that the gold you thought was there, ~~was~~ isn't.

Once again let me express my appreciation to the TVIC Journal and yourself for keeping me abreast of your activities. I always looked forward to receiving each issue.

"CHANGERS" — probably the world's most exclusive private club — is located in a remote wooded section of Florida near Fort Walton Beach. To be a member you have only one requirement to meet besides money, and that is that you are a practicing transvestite or have undergone an actual sex change!

"We found that most people simply can't deal with a true transvestite, so the club was formed to give us a place to go where we could relax and enjoy ourselves without all kinds of people making silly 'Christine Jorgensen' jokes," said CHANGERS Club manager, Helen Brecknell.

Helen, who is a stunning redhead, has been living in drag for 16 years. She is a shapely and beautiful woman

In many of the cases, the members are those who have had or are undergoing a sex change operation. They would not allow their names to be used,

"You'd think that because we want to change our sex that our problem is a sexual one," we were told by an elegant elderly lady who was an army colonel in everyday life, "but that is not the case. We are a little more mature than that. We try to recreate those qualities that we admire in the opposite sex. A young homosexual will get into drag and try to recreate the worst qualities of women. That's why all the drag queens look like sluts. We don't have that type here.

"I don't get to CHANGERS as often as I'd like to. I have had a command in the Far East for the past few years, so I can only get here on holidays. Still, after all those months in uniform and the army atmosphere, I look forward to my visits here as my chance to be the lady that I am. I am not a homosexual."

There are any number of elegant ladies and gentlemen who visit CHANGERS regularly and along with them there is the younger element of attractive young people and even two married couples!

"We have been married for 16 years," a husband (wife?) told us. "One day we both had to face the fact that as much as we loved each other, the roles we were playing were not the roles we wanted to play. So, we just reversed them and it has been wonderful for us both. We can only dress the parts in the privacy of our homes, or when we come to CHANGERS on our holidays, but we hope to make the changes permanent when my wife (husband?) retires. Then we'll probably buy a house somewhere near the club and be here much more often."

The club is a beautiful hotel on 24 acres of fenced pine and palmetto woods. Part of the property includes a beautiful stretch of white beach facing the pale green Gulf of Mexico. There are tennis courts, an 18-hole golf course, and many other facilities, including a rooftop nightclub for dancing under the stars.

"We're really no different from any other expensive private club. We have a number of famous members from the entertainment fields," a willowy young blonde told us, "and we accept them for what they want to be in spite of the fact that we can see them in films as just the opposite. We are a little picky about the really famous people who want to join, because of the publicity dangers to the rest of us."

Helen Brecknell and her staff of managers had to resort to bringing servants from foreign countries so that reporters couldn't sneak in pretending to be maids and bellboys.

"The closest we ever came to that kind of a situation," Miss Brecknell remembered, "was a case of a young girl who was in love with a much older man who came here. Somehow, she found out where he was and faked a job here as a maid. Luckily we caught her before she could do any damage. We were afraid we might have to do something rash to keep her quiet, but interestingly enough, when she understood what kind of a place CHANGERS is, she blended right in. That all happened several years ago, but she has been an active member ever since and we all get a big laugh about how it came about."

She then recounted a story about a famous Hollywood actor who came to CHANGERS every chance he had. He spent fortunes on his women's outfits and wigs etc.

Members of the club include a number of married couples

"That was an unusual case," Miss Brecknell said, "because he was a latent homosexual. Most of the time it was no problem, but when he drank too much, he would begin to believe his masquerade and want to be sexed by a man. Many of the singles who were acting like men would have tried it, but of course, they didn't have the ... how shall we say ... the necessary plumbing to do the job. Eventually, we had to drop him from the membership rolls. Even so, I can't tell you his name, but he is an Academy Award winner for his tough-guy roles in many well-known films."

She said that they often have trouble with royalty at CHANGERS, and although there are any number of people with titles who come there, just as many are turned away.

A sex change didn't help this outlaw

BEFORE Jerry Dean Michael had a sex change operation, police said he constantly ran afoul of the law. And now, as a woman, it seems Jerry's troubles are continuing to mount.

Jerry Dean, who now goes by the name of Geraldine Elizabeth

Geraldine Carmichael: She's still lawless.

Carmichael was recently convicted on an auto swindling charge in Los Angeles.

She was ordered to serve a two to 20 year prison term in the California Institution for Men at Chino and fined $30,000 for selling investors on a dream car of the future.

Criminal charges were filed against her after she sold stock in the Twentieth Century Motor Car Co. and produced a car she said would get 70 miles per gallon of gas and cost less than $2,000. But the car didn't work.

Police said Jerry Dean was involved in the same sort of schemes as a man.
