

Tom and I are still living happily ever after. He is so easy to be with and he turns me on so much I could never be mad at him. He keeps me totally amused and mentally challenged. He does a lot of things that really irritate me, but when he's standing there looking at me, I see how much he loves me and then I really don't know what it's all about. (My dad always used to ask me that: "What's it all about?" meaning life in general. I used to answer, "Dad, don't ask me! I don't know! That's why I changed my sex!") Tom is another reason I haven't been politically active--I've been so busy learning how to be a gay man and shedding all the past bad habits of self-hatred and disgust with my body. Everything has happened so fast!

I've got maybe one year left with ARCO, then plan to look for a job as a legal secretary. Tom and I have grand plans of opening up our own print shop. I talked to Eldon about possibly purchasing the old GPU NEWS typesetter he still has (shouldn't the $$ for that go to The Cause?).

I'm getting revved up to go volunteer at the Cranston headquarters here. All I need is word that Ronnie is rerunning. As a political caucuser, what's your advice? Mondale, hmmmmmm.... Any of the other political parties, forget it, they won't win. We've got to get Ronnie OUT.

Write again, Alyn--it was a pleasure to read your letter

Warmest regards,

Lou
