Kim Madayag

The city of Chicago has a reputation for being a tough town and I heard this many times from my friend, Steve, who is from the windy city. I wonder what type of reputation Los Angeles has, and also what messages the media uses to contribute and foster those types of reputations.

Recently I picked up a copy of the Village Voice from New York, and at the same time I grabbed a copy of LA Weekly. I scanned the Weekly first and noticed an ad in the theater section that was titled "Dressing Room Divas". I immediately focused on the studly looking Puerto Rican fellow with no shirt surrounded by three transvestites. The copy for the ad reads as follows, "Meryl Streep, Bette Midler, Julie Andrews, Joan Collins, Elizabeth Taylor, and two gay florists held hostage by a very sexy gunman!"

"Hilarious" and "High Camp" are a few lines that finish the ad. The play is being shown at Actors Circle Theater in West Hollywood. I want to mention that Peanuts is in the same area and there is many ladies in the transgendered community that live there. I came across the play being advertised in the Village Voice and the copy was the same. The photo in the ad was totally different. It featured a very handsome and hunky stud in what seems to be a show where he was tugging up his jock strap with one hand. In his other hand he is holding a revolver. The image is totally gay as there is no transvestites accompanying him.

I have to wonder if a tourist say from London or Australia would read the same publications would he get the impression that New York is a gay town and that LA is a transy town? I think so, and I fee this is one of the ways that people in the advertising business subtly present impressions on people. I have to mention that the theater that is featuring the play in New York is on Christopher Street.

The advertising is changed and modified to the local market and this is fine but for the fact that it perpetuates and creates images that creative an impression that can be positive or negative. Are we out here in the West Coast really more open and free? This is reflected by ads featuring transvestites. Is the East Coast still carrying that reputation for having the population carrying a more conservative view about gender and what is acceptable?

My feeling is that the localities have a lot to do with the ad content and also with the prevailing social attitude. In New York, the ad presents the gay lifestyle as that is accepted, recognized and has political power. There are no image of persons from the transgendered community and I feel that speaks for itself.

I have to add that I have had many ladies from out of state tell me that ladies who live here in Southern California have it good as far as places to go. They also comment on the fact that people out here in the West Coast seem to have a more liberal attitude towards things in general. I have to agree with this as I have lived in Boston, New Hampshire, Maine and spent a little time in New York. I also feel that as one local writer so very aptly put it, we may be lulling ourselves into a false sense of security. That false sense is played out by myself and many who sometimes forget that society in general has not left "we love you" flyers on our cars or sent out the local "welcome wagon" to our community.

Where do we go from here, as every Friday there are new drag acts at local clubs and theaters. Watch for a new wave of professional female impersonators on stage and screen. The old school of Jim Bailey, Charles Pierce and Flip Wilson will be popular. It is ladies like Ru Paul who had dumped the drag to be a male model along with shows like "Strange Fruit" which features impersonator Joey Arias channeling Billie Holiday that are the new wave of the mid 90's. Movies, plays, along with stage shows are featuring men dressed as women are very popular and this is going to definitely effect our community.

I recall the opening lines from a song written by Paul Williams and they go like this: "We Have Only Just Begun" and I feel that men who crossdress are going to find that their families, friends and co-workers are going to be only more educated about gender. They also will be able to pick up the subtle indicators that tell a person that you are one of those boy-girls or drag queens. The times are changing and it will be very interesting to see where all this brings us.

One thing leads to another and I find that this is so very true as my interests and life changes. I love writing and also find that this has now come very important in my interest in show business. Ladies who have been reading my column and following my writing and career will see a growth curve and most will have picked up that I have mentioned in the past my feelings of having the call to the stage.

I mentioned about a year about ago that the media blitz was coming after the success of the movies "The Crying Game". I never had any idea that I would get involved or be part of it. I have loved movies and television since I was in my diapers and as a baby boomer my life was constantly filled with the images coming from the silver screen. I remember going to see "The House on Haunted Hill" and "Tarantula" which was part of the b-movies "Nuclear Mutation" era.

What influenced me most was when I was with my grandmother and my Aunt Florence and Uncle Peter, they talked about the character on the soap operas in the afternoon as they were real people. I once tried to tell them that these were actors and was being filmed in a studio in New York. They were in retirement years and they did not want to hear it. They really believed the people were real and this left a lasting impression on me. It must be magic I thought and how powerful is that silver screen, I thought.

I was fourteen years old then I was also well aware that I had feelings that I was not sure of. I don't know why but even back then I knew that I would someday find my Hollywood. My Tinsletown is an exciting one, as it has plenty of books with the history of Hollywood and the cinemas. Many articles are coming at you, page after page with stories of men dressing as women and women dressing as men.

Crossdressing has been a very important part and has played an integral role in stage and screen. I am going to write about this history as I have been researching the subject. I will be doing movie and theater reviews on past and current releases, heading up that Hollywood 101 to check out many of the new stage productions that have crossdressing themes.

The late Marlene Dietrich was crossdressing in Berlin in the thirties long before director Joseph Von Sternberg had her dress in tails for a scene in Morocco, 1930. A treat to watch and the masculine and feminine bounce back and forth especially when Marlene finishes singing and gives a very pretty woman seated in the front of the audience a lusciously full open mouth kiss on the lips. Topping the scene off by throwing a flower to suitor, Cary Grant.

This scene was recreated by Torill in her one woman show "Rendezvous with Marlene". So to start my new series on "Drag in the Cinema", I am so pleased to have an exclusive interview with the multi-talented lady who has brought Marlene back to life. I am also working on the three part story for you readers on the incredible life of B-movie director Ed Wood who was a transvestite and made cult movies that were the first to show a man deeply involved and troubled by his feelings. He also directed the infamous "Plan 9 From Outer Space" which was so bad that it is now a cult classic. An incredible talent for getting his films produced, Ed Wood is brought back from the dead. Johnny Depp is playing the lead in a new movie biography about the film flam transvestite director.

I also will be doing reviews on movies that have been out for quite a while but are still interesting to people in our lifestyle. The Queen was filmed in New York in 1967 and at the time it was a serious attempt to portray a drag contest. Today it is high camp and compelling to watch. This, along with the new release from independent film producer Ellen Fischer Turk made Split Chrysis International, Portrait of a Drag Queen are movies that I feel should be seen by people in our community.

I recently was the Mistress of Ceremonies for a drag contest at the Nuart Theater in West Hollywood and it was a lot of fun. I was contacted by producer Ellen Fischer Turk to do the PR for the opening of her film at the theater. Danielle Alexis, Miss Micki and our Queen Mary Fashion Princess and Linda B were a few of the ladies who showed up and entered the contest. It was great fun for all and the audience loved the show. Yes, drag is in and I did jump aboard the bandwagon. I have no problem walking on the street and going into public places en-femme as I find I am very comfortable and I also want to do more work as they refer to it.

I want to thank Jim Bridges as he arranged for me to interview Torill and being my date for the evening. He also accompanied me to the Nuart Theater and helped with the contest, so thanks Jim.

If you have not heard all ready, there is a once a month event held on the second Saturday night that is getting a lot of attention from the local press. Dragstrip 66 is pulling in over 400 people at the parties and 1994 is officially going into the books as the birth of gay/drag/glam era! Are we retroing back to shock drag and gender intimidation because the focus of most of the glamour is the express an outrageous en-femme personae topped off with bizarre and erotic/sexual names that accentuates their need to be noticed.

I am not in any way criticizing what they are doing, as I feel we all have a right or should to be what we are and have the freedom to express ourselves.

I have heard a number of things and comments made about Dragstrip 66 and I try to keep in mind that one should check out an event or see a movie before you comment in print about it, then one can form a reasonably intelligent opinion instead of focusing on gossip, hearsay, and the words of other critics.

"Are you a boy or are you a girl?" is a line that has been around for ages. It is fascinating to see where the lines of gender in our society are being rewritten and fraying. To be sure this new breed of futuristic shock drag gender benders are eventually going to be discovered and exploited by the mass media.

Anytime there is a new trendy club that has lines of people waiting to get in to an event that draws an interesting clientele, a place where you find that certain individuals are picked by the roving staff to get in, then you know the party has turned into a "look at me, show and tell" circus. I hope this is not the case with Dragstrip 66, but it is hard not to watch your purse when someone tells you that your new TV friend is a thief. The lady may not be a thief but that idea is planted in your mind.

I plan to call the folks who promote Dragstrip 66 and ask them what their policy is on writers for publications in the gender community and I am interested in their camera policy. I will let you know what they say it will be interesting to attend one of these affairs and fill you in, I am sure.

"What influenced me most was when I was with my grandmother and my Aunt Florence and Uncle Peter, they talked about the character on the soap operas in the afternoon as they were real people. I once tried to tell them that these were actors and was being filmed in a studio in New York. They were in retirement years and they did not want to hear it. They really believed the people were real!"

Big celebration on the East Coast this month is by the wonderful folks from Constance Enterprises LTD, presenting the Eighth Annual Dressing for Pleasure Gala Event at a beautiful secluded resort with 90 acre lake in the Pocono Mountains of Pennsylvania. This is the premier fetish event on the East Coast and I am sure it will be a fabulous time for all who attend. For information write to Constance Enterprises, POB 43079, Upper Montclair, NJ 07043. Phone is (201)746-4200 or fax them at (201)746-4722.

Don't forget that this month is the Big Apple Bonanza 1994 Tri-Ess Holiday En Femme being held on the Nov 10-13. This event will feature the full tourist in drag package with sight-seeing tours and shopping along with spectacular dinner with live entertainment and plenty of workshops.

I had a wonderful time when I visited the Apple and I encourage all you ladies that are able to attend this event to do so. Part of being a member of the transgendered community is to support events such as these.

We here in Southern Calif are fortunate to have a variety of crossdressing groups and organizations along with a number of clubs and bars that cater to us. Many of the specialty boutiques that do mail order business are located here and I find that for many ladies that come from out state this is looked upon as a sort of TV heaven.

The Holidays are here and when a group of you all want to head out to celebrate do put the Queen Mary Show Lounge at the top of your list. The fabulous Las Vegas style female impersonator revue is the finest one can find and there are a number of new acts and faces so do plan a night with friends and enjoy the show.

Also starting this month at the club is the Ultimate Home Shopping Party on Sunday night the 6th from 4pm to 7 pm. All are invited and cost is canned goods for Hospices in So. Cal. Shop for your holiday needs and do a good deed. Call the club (818)506-5619 and ask Richard for details. This is a Christine Hotchberg production and kudos to her for doing a lot to support individuals and groups in the local TG community. Have a happy Thanksgiving and when you go out for that Holiday party, drive safe and dress to thrill!

Love and peace,
Marlayna

Viva Torill, bravo Torill, and thank you, Torill, for bringing back to life the late Marlene Dietrich that so many of us love and adore. No, Marlene will never be with us again, but we do have her movies, records and books.

We also have an opportunity to enjoy the image and mystique of Marlene through the wonderfully talented chanteuse from Norway, Torill. Her one woman show "Rendezvous with Marlene", which held it's world Premier Engagement at the Melrose Theater in Hollywood, was named "Critics Choice" by the LA Times. Yes, once again Marlene is with us in Torill.

Jim Bridges and I attended. The house was full and held spellbound through the entire performance. The smallest details are so important, and every glance and nuance were right on. The audience loved every minute, and Torill built a warm, comfortable rapport with her intimate manner.

It is obvious that Torill did a lot of research on Marlene and her life. One can easily tell that the lady is a perfectionist. This was evident in the person of Stan Freeman who was Marlene's musical director for twelve years, and Jules Aaron directed with lovely set design by Bradley Kaye made this show special.

Torill wore a number of Marlene's signature dresses and outfits, and I got the chills as she made her entrance in her bedroom in blue heaven. During her conversation with us Marlene tells us of her feelings about love, "Give into your desires, be true to yourself, and damn what they say." Well, Jim Bridges and I looked at each other and we both knew we were in for a wonderful evening.

This is not a lip synch act, as the talented Torill can speak and sing in ten languages, and she sings all the songs herself along with great dialogue which she wrote. Marlene tells of her early years and then she runs through the men in her life.

These personal insights of Marlene's life are amusing and an introduction to fans who are not familiar with her history of liaisons with famous men. The set and the lighting were excellent and we really felt as if we were visiting Marlene at a show in her boudoir in heaven.

These little specials, led into her songs and Torill wowed the room as she gave us rich and warm renditions of many of Marlene's favorites. Yes, she did "Falling in Love again", along with "The Boys in the Backroom", and my favorite, the tawdry classic, "The Laziest Gal in Town". Jim and I loved the show and the treat was that I then had a chance to meet the wonderfully talented Torill and obtained permission to do this exclusive interview for TV Epic.

Marlayna: I have to start off by telling you how much I enjoyed your performance.

Torill: Good, I thank you and I also have been very lucky to be surrounded by a nice group of people. It's been very good, but if

TV, SCREEN AND STAGE

I had known what I was getting into I don't think I would have done this.

Marlayna: Really, what happened?

Torill: It started out as a little evening with Dietrich and then it just took over because there is so much material out. In order to do something you have to sit and read and listen to the music and watch the movies.

Marlayna: I was wondering about that and how much research was involved?

Torill: Yeah lots! Lots of research and I have also been very fortunate to have some people who knew her personally.

Marlayna: Had you ever met her?

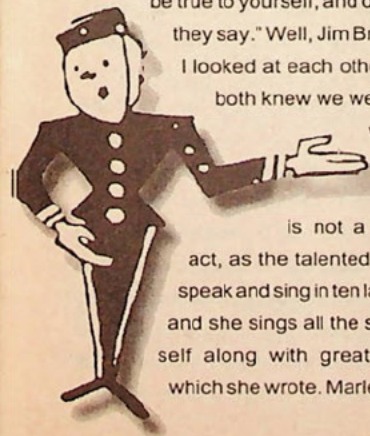

Torill: No I haven't, I never even saw her on stage, I came too late.

Marlayna: Where did you first perform as Dietrich?

Torill: I am from Norway and when I came over here, people were saying all the time, "My gosh, she looks like a young Dietrich. I wasn't preoccupied with her at all. You know in European show, it is nothing to go in tails or do things like that. It's not a big deal.

I started to sing at this restaurant called, "Alexis On Knob Hill" in San Francisco and it was an international club so they wanted me to do all these languages. I sing in ten languages so this is one of my forte when it comes to that. Anyway, so I started to incorporate some of her songs in my show because I heard this all the time, so I thought, "Why don't I sing 'Falling in Love again?'" or whatever, but of course I did it in German for an international flair. That's how it started.

Marlayna: Did that lead to your part in the movie, "The Day the Bubble Burst"?

Torill: Right! My first television role in America was portraying her where I sat on the barrel and sang "Falling in Love Again" and when that happened, this was Twentieth Century Fox, I got the hat and stuff and incorporated this in to my night club act.

To make a long story short, that is how it started. People have said, "Why don't you make an "Evening with Dietrich", or Why don't you do a show about Dietrich?"

Marlayna: Where did you go from there?

Torill: I started to think, well, should I just tell anecdotes, or should I be her, I mean all these things had to be, you know... I started to read books about her and, boy, I started to wonder, what am I getting into? It never ends, so I just kept going and I have a friend who knew Dietrich personally and he has a library of films so I have been sitting watching and reading.

Marlayna: Yes, there is so much material out there about Marlene. What was the biggest challenge?

Torill: To find the format. You know, how would she ever reveal her feelings, how would she talk about her private life? She never did in real life! So then all this came around.

Marlayna: From all this you just pulled it out of your head and put it together?

Torill: Yes, I had one different format in the beginning It was like Boel Coward's birthday and I would have famous people in the audience that I would address, but it was simpler and a friend of mine said well, What if she came back from the dead?

Marlayna: What an idea to work with!

Torill: Oh yes, I said, My God! I can do what I damn well please! It was wonderful.

Marlayna: Did you write most of the dialogue and come up with the ideas yourself?

Torill: I wrote everything.

Marlayna: Well, I want to tell you that it was wonderful, and I have to say, very clever!

Torill: Some of it is a little bit clever I have to say, and there were certain lines I picked up from Hemmingway that I thought were cute. Anyway, I had a whole story made but when you get into production you cut and cut and cut.

I started to sing at this restaurant in San Francisco, and it was an international club so they wanted me to do all these languages. I sing in ten languages, so this is one of my forte when it comes to that. So I started to incorporate some of her songs in my show because I heard this all the time, so I thought, "Why don't I sing 'Falling in Love again?'" but of course, I did it in German for an international flair. That's how it started."

Marlayna: Well, I loved the way you tied it all together.

Torill: That was another thing. It was very hard to pick the right songs. Some of them I wanted to be completely obscure, and some of them of course, the songs we all know and associated with her. I also wanted the songs to tell the story and I think that works, that was a major undertaking.

Marlayna: The audience and critics love your show. How has doing this and getting involved with Dietrich affected you?

Torill: What it has done is open doors for me and I have met a lot of people I would have never otherwise have met, due to the fact that we have had such wonderful reception which I think is sort of funny because the headlines say, "Marlene." Now I want Torill up there. I am Marlene! Right?

Laughing while saying this, Torill gave us some insight into her feelings about it all. You know even in Europe it's Bang, Bang, Bang, "Dietrich is back", and "Marlene is back" or whatever, and Torill is underneath, and I'm saying, no, I want to see Torill up there!

Marlayna: It seems like you enjoy all of it.

Torill: It has been very nice in the sense, because of the subject matter and because obviously there must have been something good in the script, I have been in contact and gotten a lot more contacts than I would have.

Marlayna: I understand this is your World Premiere Engagement.

Torill: Yes, we plan to find a new theater in the area or take it to San Francisco.

Marlayna: Well, thank you so much, and please come over to the Queen Mary as Jim and I will be there and we can all see the show.

At this point Torill's line producer came in and told us to wrap it up, so we said goodbye. Torill is a warm, charming person and her talents are many. I feel that no matter what role or project she involves herself in, she will be spectacular and she will see her name up there. At this time she impersonates a woman whose legend is such that as a performer she finds herself competing with the woman that she impersonates. The tension from the two conflicting personalities of Torill and the late Marlene are the magic that makes this show a "Critic's Choice" favorite.

TRANS TALK

with Kelley Wise

For a male to female transsexual, female hormones play a crucial role in developing the desired appearance. One needs to be constantly aware of warning signs of potential hormone induced medical problems. Many TS's anxiously watch for signs of breast development or softening of the facial features, but pay little attention to internal warning signs.

In the first place, don't smoke cigarettes while on estrogen. This increases the potential risk of hormone induced heart disease, stroke, or lung cancer. Blood clotting is the most critical concern brought on by mixing hormones and smoking. Oral hormones such as Premarin increase the risk of abnormal blood clotting in various parts of the body. A stroke can result from a clot in the brain. A heart attack can be caused by a clot in a blood vessel of the heart. A pulmonary embolism can occur from a clot in the legs breaking loose and traveling to the lungs. Any of these occurrences can be fatal.

A dear friend of mine whom many in the gender community knew, passed away recently, the result of a massive stroke brought on by heavy smoking and regular high doses of Estradiol Valerate, and Progesterone. This person was in their fifties, which further illustrates the increased risk involved when hormones are taken at a later age.

The younger you are when you start, the better your chances of minimizing the risks. Be aware that the longer you are on hormones, the greater your risk becomes. Long term use of estrogens have been reported to cause cancer in the breasts and excessive consumption of alcohol can lead to cancer of the liver.

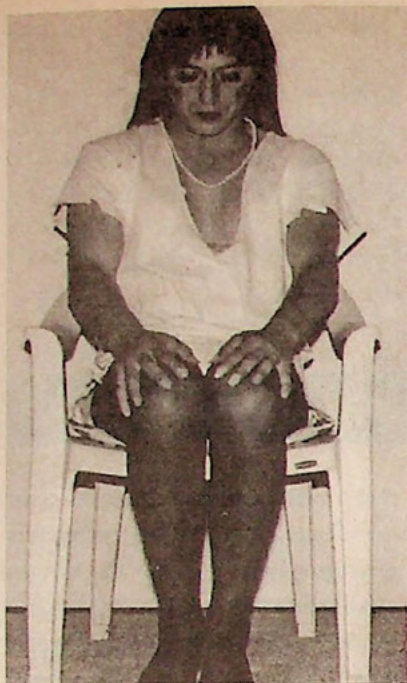

Your doctor should perform blood tests every six months you are on estrogen. Ask to have a complete blood work up. This should include: testosterone, estrogen, and prolactin levels, blood sugar levels, and a profile of lipid and liver enzymes. Have the veins in your lower legs checked for signs of phlebitis. Some people will have vomiting or nausea which is the most common side effect. In the first few months of use you will experience tenderness of the breasts and nipples, and you can expect some temporary discharge of liquid. These effects are not dangerous.

Be watching for the following signs of potential problems: 1. pain in the calves or chest, shortness of breath, or coughing blood. These can indicate possible clots in the legs, heart or lungs. 2. Severe headaches or dizziness, faintness or changes in vision. These can indicate possible developing clots in the brain or eye. Observe any signs of mental depression.

If any of these warning signs develop, discontinue the use of estrogen and see your doctor immediately. Don't let a health problem develop from misuse of hormones and result in you not being able to continue to take estrogen, and severely limit your transition to femininity. Good Luck!

GENDER expression

Something that has been real independent in learning to enjoy myself as a transgendered person is to learn to love myself for who I am and to do things for myself to enjoy life. Doing that will make life a lot easier.

One thing I decided a couple years ago was that I wanted to celebrate my birthday and have a party and invite my friends, so I put together the party at the Queen Mary Show Bar in Studio City with a buffet dinner, cake and champagne. It came out really well and we had 41 guests. They came from as far as Hawaii and New York. We had our dinner and went in and watched the show. During the show, the Mistress of Ceremonies, Butch Ellis presented my birthday cake from the stage and sang Happy Birthday. It really made me feel good and all the other people who had come to see the show wished me a happy birthday.

Last year I found out my friend Rhonda's birthday was the same day as mine so we went in together on a cake and had a celebration at the Queen Mary on Saturday night. Then Sunday night I hosted a sit down dinner for 30 people at the Venture Inn. We celebrated my birthday and my older daughters graduation from High School. We really had a wonderful time.

Each year it seems as if I do different things and get out and do more as to really enjoy myself. This year has really become a week long celebration. Starting with dinner with three of my closest friends, Saturday before my birthday and then on Monday night I plan to have dinner with a very special friend who had a birthday in mid July but was in the hospital having some surgery, so we're having dinner at Yamashiro in Hollywood Hills and celebrating our birthdays together. Thursday, I have a friend who is coming down to LA for the night to take me out to dinner. Friday night I will be celebrating with another good friend, Erin Krystle, who is an up and coming song writer and entertainer. Her birthday is on the fifth of August and we're having dinner with some of her friends.

To top the week off, on Saturday the sixth of August we have planned a Gala Party at the Los Angeles Hilton. We have rented a Hospitality Suite and we are inviting over fifty guests from the gender community and the entertainment industry.

Each year it seems as if I am doing new things and really coming out and enjoying myself more and when you can do that it makes it a lot easier to enjoy life with others. Accepting yourself for who you are and being able to love yourself makes life a whole lot better and that is a fact which everybody in this world needs to do and it would a better life for everyone.

This is one of the things that really made a change in my life and it can do it for you. You are a person and you have the right to enjoy life so don't be afraid to take that first step and get out and learn to enjoy yourself. If I can be of any help giving you ideas or answers on how to get out and express yourself just drop me a line.

BRIDGES TO BEAUTY

Last week one of my ladies called me in a panic. She had just bought a new dress, shoes, and purse for the next Queen Mary party night. Her dilemma was that she had broken out with several pimples on her face. Her attempts at covering them were futile.

This is a simple problem you can prevent with a few skin care tips. Most people with oily skin tend to overwash and this in itself can cause problems. You are washing away surface oil, and the skin then produces more oil to protect itself from dryness. You may create dry flaky skin which can also break out.

Applying too much moisturizer is another problem as this can also cause you to break out. Moisturizer need only be applied to the dry areas of your face. I recommend letting your face breathe before you apply anything to it.

If you should have problems with constant breakout, you might consider consulting your doctor or see a dermatologist. Do not expect a simple solution of covering up the problem with make up to work.

I am told there are three new treatments which are available to you over the counter. Isotrex is a non prescription form of Accutane. This product was created to suppress excess oil and inhibit break outs.

The second one which is also popular is a product called Flouroquinline and is a new topical antibiotic. The front runner of the new three is Glycolic Acid and this was first sold and promoted as a treatment for wrinkles. This has now been proven quite effective against dreaded acne.

So ladies, if you are concerned about good skin, use quality cosmetics as well as skin care products. All of Jim Bridges cosmetics are fragrance free. This means they are extremely pure and will work well with most sensitive skin.

Recently one of the ladies came down with a nasty eye infection. This was fortunately only mildly painful. The real pain was she had to cancel a boudoir photography session with me. She had planned this session for a couple of months. Her session would have to be put on hold all because she had been using an old mascara. Germs and bacteria build up in a relatively short time in mascara and liquid eye liner. These items should be replaced every six months.

Remember ladies, never go to sleep with your eye make up still on. I cannot emphasize enough how important it is to take care of your skin! Always use quality cosmetics, nothing too heavy or greasy. I do not recommend theatrical make up as it is much too heavy and thick and is best for people doing work on stage and screen. We would love to hear from you with any questions you have so please give us call or write.

Best Wishes.

Dealing with Coming Out

You are going to read this, but I want you to know that I wrote the "sissy" piece a while back and since then my own personal life has been rocked, as I am really having to make some serious decisions about where I want to go in life. I was not aware that when Mistress Jennifer Antone did my first make over and I took on the name Marlayna that I was starting the exciting and challenging transformation that we refer to as coming out.

They say that there are times and moments in one's life that are monumental and are truly major chapters in the book that is one's life. I recall that one of the first letters I received in response to the first personal ad I placed in TV Epic was from a dominant Mistress who lived in Florida. She was looking for applicants from submissive TV slut slaves as she was interested in having a slave live with her and serve her on a 24 hour a day basis. She also added that she was sure that even if I did not do this with her that someday I would be the perfect "sissy slave" for some lucky Mistress.

Well, at that time, I was still guarding my masculinity or trying to hold on to a shred of it as I was nervous about this new endeavor. All of a sudden I am being called a sissy. Well, I wrote back to that lady and informed her that my lifestyle did not allow me the freedom to come live with her and cook, clean and serve. I also told her that I was offended that she referred to me as a sissy and explained to her that I was a heterosexual man who was a transvestite and was in no way a sissy.

I did not hear from this woman again but about a week after I mailed this Mistress my letter I told Tasha La Blush about the letter from lady and my reply. Tasha rolled her eyes and gave me the look that we refer to as the "cat who ate the canary". Following this look she went into a birdlike noise, something like an extended coo from a morning dove "Whoooooooooooooo!"

I often hear this "warble of the queens" when we have more than three or four ladies sitting at a club or at a party. Most often it is heard when a lady new to the scene makes her appearance.

Well, Tasha went to the kitchen to get a cup and a bowl for the cold soup honey. She informed me that there were more than a few reasons why this woman would refer to me as a sissy. She drove the stake home with this spiel. It is assumed that if you are a man who wears a dress, that you also wear panties, and we all know that men who wear panties are sissies. BooYaaa - hit me with a double shot and as the blood drained from my face as the stake had hit a major artery, I realized how very true her words were. I then thought, well, if some people will see and perceive me as a sissy, then I am going to be one of the sexiest sissies they ever laid their eyes on.

I have learned to do a pretty good job doing my own make up and presenting an attractive and positive feminine image. I have also found that most people really do not focus on that sissy image that I was so concerned with back then. One thing that I am dealing with now is the coming out that I am doing in public as I am now venturing into show business. I do not know where this will take me but I plan to have fun and enjoy myself as I feel keeping the fun in this is so important and this is all part of my dealing with coming out.

This is the end of summer with this September On the Scene night party. Some are girls, and some are not; you be the judge. We had new faces for the event and one of them was first time out partier, Brice from Woodland Hills, California. She had been watching the events for several years and finally got the courage to come out. She was pleased by her decision. Brice felt like the people who were at the party were very friendly and comforting. I know it is a good feeling to be around so many encouraging and supportive folks.

Our new friend came in on the Friday night before the party to case the joint and get a feel for the night club and patrons. When I met her on that Friday, she asked me many questions about the celebration. I had told her, just as she witnessed Friday night, the events are a night to be yourself and let your hair down. I encourage all who haven't been to an OTSN to come out. We feature free snacks and night club is also decorated for the events. We give door prizes from various vendors around the community to our guests and they surely enjoy the attention.

I am certain that many of you out there have been all dressed up and have had nothing to do and no where to go. Well now there is an ongoing party for all to attend. On The Scene Night is a night to party and socialize. You can meet new friends and get connected with many of the organizations from your community. On The Scene Night is an outreach for all, offering support and encouragement.

Well, I am back on the airwaves again with my most recent interview on the Mancow Muller show, WRCX 103.5 in Chicago. Some of the Rolling Stones were in the station giving away tickets and they were witness to one of my best interviews as of yet. If you heard the broadcast, then call or write the station and tell them what you thought of the show. They will be pleased to hear from the T community. They had Mrs. Rosetti, the middle classed lady from Chi town and she commented that she thought it was all pretty weird. I then told Mrs. Rosetti that she had to admit that she was born a little girl and she became a woman also. She said that she had been born a woman. I told her that must have torn her mother up, giving birth to a full grown woman. She thought about my comment, then agreed and said that she had learned something. I remarked that I learn something every day also.

I want to thank Mancow Muller and WRGX for the time to promote our cause, Independence. I would like to thank Mrs. Rosetti also for her open mind and love. I hope to talk to a radio station near you, so keep listening.
