Dear Louis:

This letter simply confirms our conversation on the phone on December 3 in which I confirmed our interview with the sophomore class on January 13, 1988 at 8:00 a.m. As we discussed on the phone, this means that you will be leaving San Francisco on Tuesday morning, hopefully arriving here in the early afternoon. I have scheduled the studio for an interview between you and me on Tuesday afternoon at approximately 3:00 p.m. Hopefully that will give you enough time to check into your hotel and get over to the university. The studio that I am referring to is in the Education Building on the main campus. You would go to room 102. Let me suggest that somewhere after the first of the year, you give us a call and speak to Susan at 702-784-4917. Susan will then make a reservation for you at the Ramada Inn or one of the other hotels where the medical school has an account. Thus you would stay over Tuesday night and be available to talk with me before the class on Wednesday morning, January 13.

Let me burden you with one final request. Since I am intending to write a vignette about you, perhaps it would be best if you could write a brief autobiography, as it were. By this I mean something approximately three or four typewritten pages in which you would review the salient information of your growing up. Obviously of concern here would be any ideas you have about the development of your unusual gender identity problem and sexual preference. Some attention to your relationship with your parents and your siblings would be important. If by any chance you have time to address that between now and the time we meet next in mid-January, so much the better.

Looking forward to our next meeting on January 12,

Sincerely yours,

Ira B. Pauly, M.D.
