

The management of the Fulton Theater announces for the closing week of the season one of the best all round bills that have heretofore graced the boards of this playhouse. Julian Eltinge, the athletic and manly young Boston boy, whose feminine characterizations have been a marvel, will be the headline feature. Julian Eltinge will have a new repertoire of characters next week, including "The Lady of Mystery," in which he wears a black velvet dress and a hat which is one of the latest creations of Parisian art. "Honeymoon in June Time," is a dainty number, showing Eltinge as an ingenue. In "The Olden Days," he will appear in the costume of a century ago. "That Spanish-American Flag," as the closing number, will present him in an entirely new role - His dancing between the verses of this song is notable. Next on this bill will be the Boganny troupe, styled "The Lunatic Bakers," and special stress is laid on the fact that they are the only and original Bogannys, of international fame. Those old time favorites, Mc-Mahon and Chappelle, will present "The Pullman Parlor Maids." One of the most interesting personalities of the stage is Josephine Sabel, the singer who made the hit of her life singing "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town To-night." Miss Sabel will be accorded a hearty welcome and will introduce many songs and mannerisms imported from abroad. M. L. Alsop & Co. will be seen in a farce comedy skit entitled "A Portable House," in which the principals are a young man, a girl and a minister. The Carson broth-
