Happy Halloween, it is the one time of year when it is o.k. to dress up. Years ago, the second article I wrote was about this holiday. Is it really fair that out of 365 days in the year, only one is designated as "ladies night out." I say that because for many men out there, this is the only time they can get away with it. I have heard many stories about men and women dressing up in drag on Halloween and not stopping. It seems that once this connection is made it does not shut down. So, if this is the only time you can get all decked out from wig to heels. Go for it, and do consider booking Val Driscoll at "Hear to wear Wigs or "Jim Bridges" for a make-over. You want your transformation to be the best and seeing a beauty specialist in our community is the way to go.

At Tuesday night this year and I will be up at Tommy Tangs in Hollywood for dinner. Then I will hit S & M Blvd. (Santa Monica Blvd.) to spend a few hours enjoying my infamous camera time. The Queen Mary Show Lounge will be having a big party so do call the club for details.

Did you like the photo spread I made up from the camera time at the Wigstock movie premiere? I hope so and Ms. Lacie will be finding more and new exciting events to attend and cover for TV Epic. I have to say that I am very proud and pleased to see this publication grow. I feel I have kept my promise to Frank Marsh (former publisher) to make this a publication that represents the gender community. This magazine is for you and I ask you to write with any comments and suggestions. Your participation is most important and necessary as we want to give you what you want. A creative mix as they call it and all who contribute make for a better EPIC. Have a safe and happy Halloween and dress to thrill.

I have always wanted to write a book and I knew from the start that I did not want to do a run of the mill story about being a crossdresser running in bars and clubs. When I first started dressing I was not even aware that I was entering a new world. Territory that was full of emotional and psychological canyons and abysses. My first go at writing was my infamous column

with Marlayna Lacie

"On the Scene." Featured for over seven years in TV Epic magazine it brought me celebrity status and a reputation in the transgendered community. The column's focus was to disseminate information about the local community. News on current events and happenings and tidbits of happenings and harmless gossip. My crossdressing world was the LA Orange County area that was what I wrote about for the first few years. That soon changed as I was to find myself traveling to Texas, New York, and local Burbank to attend national community events. Yes, I was the paparazzi with my camera and note book getting ladies coast to coast to do the camera time dance for me. I soon had letters and cards coming in from all over the world. I was finding my scene was global and that it became to me the biggest support group in the world. My writing became a major part of my life and I then looked for something new to write about. At that time I was receiving many letters from men who were in the closet or new to the scene. They were looking for advice about situations that they were facing and having to deal with. I did not see myself as the "Dear Abby" for the crossdressing scene, yet I felt it was very important to try to find good sound advice to give to these men and couples. My column I found was not the place to expose my politics and I did not want to do a letter from readers with answers. I decided that a column focusing on situations and problems we men face might be the answer. I then decided that it would be for single men as I felt there are plenty of sources for couples to draw on for help. Single men have been writing to me for the years with questions and support. They seek advice and help in dealing with the situations they face as a man who crossdresses. Yes, we are all different yet many of our lives run the same cut as the river. We all want to find love and acceptance and yet many of us have to have a very hard time accepting our own wants and needs.

I will never tell anyone that being a transgendered person is an easy road to run in this day and age. I will also say that times have never been better for us as a group. We are slowly gaining recognition from society as a whole but many are not and never will be comfortable with us or our lifestyle. I accepted this long ago and also decided that I had to live my life for me and live with my decisions. That is what you must do in life and in this lifestyle. Before you can love another, one must have the capacity and maturity to love oneself. To look in the mirror and be happy and at peace with all of it. Guilt may be your biggest issue and most of it is useless and self-imposed. I feel that many men really feel deep down inside that they are doing something wrong. A shame as this guilt comes from the words, images, and influences of others and society. Dealing with coming out is never ending road that one can enjoy. Realizing that many things that happen go with the territory and feeling puzzled about this new landscape is normal. I personally have dealt with co-workers, neighbors, and family members, never mind a few wives and a number of girlfriends.

All the experiences I had came with the territory and were important in my growth as a transgendered person. I want to mention that the love and support of family, friends, and teachers at my local college helped me immensely. Many times I asked Debra Abbitt Schaefer, my fashion professor for advice and she was there for me with helpful words and encouragement. Julie my waitress at Park Pantry gave me a few lessons in Philosophy 101 and some great meals. These ladies and many others were there for me during the years I wrote my "DWCO" column. Thanks to all for the love and support. I hope these pages and words help you and give you some insight into your great adventure in heels.

Two or three years ago, Tasha La Blush came back from New York and told me about an event called Wigstock and the grand queen of the event Miss Bunny. I thought that this was a wonderful concept and then I heard about a movie that was in production. During November 1994 and I talked to Kelly Wise about local happenings and I mention that I plan to find the name of the studio and check up on "Wigstock: The Movie." At that time I was looking for an idea or concept for a stage show I have wanted to do for some time. No, I will never be the Busby Berkeley of Drag. Yet, I had this idea that I could put together and present a fun community event. One that would be a special treat for those who participate and hit the stage. Fun and a treat for the audience who have all the rights to expect to be entertained. It is funny how one can think back and realize how much certain things influenced your life.

The television and the movies were it for me although I never really realized or focused on how much. I was in love with Shirley Temple and I loved watching her sing and dance and charm the pants of Cab Calloway and many other male and female stars. Carmen Miranda and the fruit hats and all those sexy erotic images filled me with fantasies and dreams. Maybe some of you caught those old Mickey Rooney high school dance flicks. The whole gang would turn out for the big dance number at the end. Then I caught the war flicks with the famous "Hollywood Soup Kitchen" and all the stars singing and dancing to end the war. Hey, for what it is worth my beloved Marlene Dietrich (RIP) was not in the studio in Culver City. She was running around war torn Europe as the war raged. Entertaining allied troops on the front lines. They also say she spent some time with one commander, George C. Patton and showed her appreciation as she hated Hitler. Next it was Dick Clark and he had these parties that were on television. I thought what a fabulous gig that must be. Seemed like he was having a blast and he was giving those teenagers a super time. I might have mentioned this before but I have to add on it. I was a fan of the hit T.V. series, "The Waltons." The show starts off with John Boy reading a few lines to introduce us to the story. I thought that this was so special. I realized as a writer does that, it was not the fine actor was reading from a script. Most likely drafted from a book.

Around the same time I had a teacher in a study class have everyone write a short story. Mine was about being a fish and getting caught and it was not as explicit or as good as I wanted it to be. The teacher did praise me and told me to continue to write. I had a fortune teller that I visited when I was nineteen, tell me I would be married twice, have a son and be a writer and travel the country. I have to add he was not the walk in five dollar gypsy one thinks of. The mold was being formed and I see where the creative mix and dysfunctional family were a classic combination. One that made me want to be in one of those dance days flicks from the past. Yes, a dream and a fantasy and yet what better place to look for and hopefully find our dream that in Hollywood! I lived in Huntington Beach from age seven to fourteen. I was devastated when I had to leave Southern California. Three thousand miles away and my fantasy then focused on going back to California. The big thing back east is many about California is going to Hollywood.

Seeing the stars and all that. California is going to Hollywood. Seeing the stars and all that. I had tasted it and it was taken away by a train ride and a divorce. Stranger in a strange land yet the television and the movies were there.

They came from wonderful exciting places like New York and Hollywood. I was growing up and music filled my life. The doors, The Rolling Stones, Hendrix, and Joni Mitchell. My first wife was a talented guitarist and performer and I acted as her roadies and manger. She had a great voice and I would watch her hit the stage and I was so envious. When she had her poetry published in a book of women poets I was so happy for her. Yet, I was envious and how special it was for me when Pathway published a poem I wrote.

My "Wigfest West '95" event is my way of living out my dream and I am so happy that I have felt some salty drops running down my cheeks. Thank you to all who attended my first and very successful affair at Tommy Tangs in Hollywood. As I sat and looked down the table filled with friends old and new, I thought back to my first dinner at the Manhattan in Long Beach.

Yes, you have come a long way baby, but most of all I focused on all the fun I have had on the ride. I am now a charter member with a bandwagon of my own in the new gender-blender revolution of the 90's.

By the way the gender bender thing came from the cocktail menu at Tommy Tangs. My horse and pony show will be on trendy Melrose Ave. and like last night I will invite a local celebrity to interview.

I just picked up the photos but in a few days I will do my "Wigfest West '95" event. I will then decide on what photos and how many I send on last nights dinner.

Mistress Jacqueline and her significant other, Vinnie Spit, who started and plays in the band "SPIT." This evening I invited all the models that Nina Charese has in her fashion show. Along with special friend, Val Drisscoll from "Hair to Wear Wigs." Local neighbor and new friend, Anthony was a dinner guest of mine and he mentioned that he had made a few show business contacts. Robert "Phylliss Diller" Sanford will be on every guest list and show line-up I do. Ha-haa, never sounded funnier and I look forward to seeing him perform. I have to mention that Sandi and Patrick were there to greet me when I arrived and we agreed that it looked good.

Yes, there are always a few minor details to work out. They are minuscule in the scheme of things. At this point, I am planing on contacting my dear friend and world renown dominant diva, Mistress Sondra Rey to be my guest this month. Look for a full page advertisement in this publication and I will see you Tuesday night, October 3rd at "Tommy Tangs" in Hollywood. This month I will be celebrating my birthday on the fourth Saturday of the month. Fetish nite, so do attend and dress up in your finest "haute couture" fetish fashions.

I will be bringing lots of "give a ways" and exciting door prizes. That's on the 28th and go circle the calendar now. I want all my friends to attend my fetish birthday party.

Congratulations to Dee Grady who now holds the title as President of Powder Puff of California (PPOC). I got this news and lot more when I stopped by to chat with ex-prez Patti Barton. Dee will do a fine job. For many organizations, new blood is essential. She has been one of the most active members and she has a monthly column. It features her warm and friendly outlook and she manages to cover a lot of territory. I plan to attend a meeting soon and I know Dee will be available for some camera time. The girls have found a place to party and it is one of my old stomping grounds as they say.

I plan to attend a meeting soon and I know Dee will be available for some "camera time." The girls have found a place to party and it is one of my old stomping grounds as they say. Dinner at Ozz in Buena park on the first Saturday night and then a little entertainment. I like the idea and I do plan to hit the calendar and call in a reservation. I was pleased to hear the PPOC has opened up a little and the growth is evident. There will always be a number of ladies who will never leave a safe room or convention. This is fine but I also feel it is important for an organization to offer dinners and events out and with the public. I feel that by us going out "enfemme" we send a million messages. The most important being, the one the gays used to use, "We ain't staying in the closet no more." With gold lame and platforms darling!

I go a number of upscale clubs and eateries and, yes I do sometimes get clocked. No, I do not find a lot of nasty looks and rude remarks. I conduct myself as a lady should and most of all I expect to be treated with respect. You and I need friends and a group like PPOC can fill a huge vacuum in one's life. Fun events, parties, dinners, and most of all a place where you will find people who will love and accept you. It comes naturally for me to say this as over the years I have seen the Queen Mary Show Lounge in the same light. Do not sit home all alone and be afraid to reach out. You can find friends that you can share and enjoy your crossdressing and your life with.

Right now there are a number of people with ads in this publication. Consider sending a letter with a photo and a SASE. Tell the person you are not looking for a relationship but that you seek information on clubs and organizations for crossdressers in your area. Believe it or not I do not have a computer and I have a lot of people telling me I should plug in the Internet and Pathway BBS. I am a little uneasy about this and maybe I am old fashioned. I could be wrong and in two years have a different view. Right now I am so busy that I am hesitant to get any new toy that will take up my time.

New toy you say, o.k. it is the tool of today but as a writer my basic tool has been a pencil, pen, and a paper. Light by candle in a tent, 10,000 feet up on a mountain in the Sierras. I am just starting to formulate the story for a play that I want to write. It will be about a cross-dresser and I told the basic story to a few close friends and they liked it a lot. I feel that I could end this with a lot of information on this party and that event. I want to say that in life it is important for all of us to take a little time to smell the roses. Allow yourself to walk through the fields of summer flowers and follow your heart. You like me, have dreams and visions, and they are the fruit of my life, my friend. Your fantasies are like flowers, they must be watered and nourished or they wither and die. So I ask you to sit down as I once did and as I often do. Look at those wigs and high heels. Pull out the boxes of earrings and lacy things. Then you crawl way back inside yourself and ask yourself this, "Am I going to live my life as I must or will I be a prisoner unto myself?"

Years ago I gave myself permission to explore and live my life so someday there would be no wishes for a second time around. As one cross-dresser to another, I tell you that it is important to bury a lot of the BS that goes with the territory. When you know the truth, it is really easy to live it and the once invisible trucks that carried the manure become larger than life. So my parting words for this column will be: go out on Halloween and have a fun time. Then go out any damn night you please and if anyone has anything to say, tell em what my good friend Joey Arias tells em in New York, "Fuck Off!"

Love Ya Baby

Dealing with Coming Out

by Marlayna Lacie

I recall that it had not been six months before someone said to me, "So when are you going to shave your legs?" I recall that I felt a shiver go through me. I did this once when I was married and I was dressing up to entertain myself and my first wife. I did not enjoy the experience and it always left a somewhat bitter taste in my mouth. Ten years later and I remind myself that many times I have told others that being involved in this lifestyle should include a say never attitude.

Last night was a big party at TOMMY TANGS in West Hollywood. I had reservations for Katie and myself and I had heard that the one and only Madonna has shown up for these events. I also had plans to talk to Sandi Tang to finalize my arrangements for the first Tuesday event I am promoting at TOMMY'S. Earlier in the week I mentioned this to Tasha La Blush and one of her comments was, "So, you gonna shave those legs?" For the first time I thought to myself that maybe it was time for me to make that move. No big deal, many of you are saying. Maybe a few of you are surprised that to me, shaving my legs is a big deal. Well it has and I feel that I like many of you have had or do have a little "thing" about some particular habit or accommodation that goes along with crossdressing. I mentioned to a few ladies that I shave the hair on my hands and most told me that they would not or could not. I feel it comes from your own personal ideas and beliefs about how far you want to give to your en-femme personae. This was in the back of my mind when Jim Bridges asked me if I was going to wear my usual pattern or fishnet hose to this party. That did it and if I succumbed a little to peer group pressure, so be it. I spent the whole day looking forward to seeing Katie and having a nice dinner at TOMMY'S. I also had decided the night before I went to sleep that I would shave my legs before I got dolled up. At six I looked at the clock and then it hit me, oh shit, You otta have those gams honey!! I looked down as the razor, worked and soon half my calf was done. I then realized that this was no ten minute operation and I started to work with two razors. The first leg done and I was wishing that I had two dominant mistresses here who needed a willing person for a shaving scene for a kinky adult video. They could do all this damn work and jeez there is more hair coming off than I ever imagined. My, my my how those lovely panty hose just slid up my smooth hair free legs. I looked at the clock and reached for my dress. I was in "doll mode" and contemplating the earlier hour at the "razor ranch."

I then looked at the clock and my mind moved on to focus on where my Chanel lip gloss was. I recall making mental notes to myself to remember these new feelings. The lightness on my legs as I was not wearing two pair of panty hose. In the restaurant I stood up and told Katie to take a look at my legs. Mentioning that this night was special as it had taken me ten years to shave em. She commented that she had one ages ago and oh how it felt so good. Yes, I have to agree that it is a fun feminine feeling and I kind of like it.

Mentioning this today to Tasha she said, "Yeah and every time you shaved off a patch, did you call yourself a sissy? I hung up on her as it was time and we do that to each other occasionally. I told Tasha long ago that I have NO PROBLEM being called a sissy. If I am one then I am gonna be the sexiest most attractive man in a dress "sissy" I can be. I recall that, as I was shaving I was thinking about many of you and how you deal with or dealt with this. I sit here and as I type I do feel the difference. I am aware that things feel smoother and silkier when touching my legs. I realize that this is something new and special and I write this because I want to look back someday and remember this special time. One most likely like you have had or experienced and can relate to. Like so many things that we men who dress as women face. As we find ourselves dealing with coming out.

I had been dressing and going to private parties and clubs in Hollywood for about two years before I told a dear friend back east about my lifestyle. A few months later Judy and I were discussing a few issues that had come up. I had sent her some photos and a copy of TV Epic a few months back when I informed her about Marlayna and the Scene. Living in and coming from New England or from any region of the country gives many people a similar mind set and this I have been told many times. You know how they say people from the South are "rednecks" and are right wing and conservative. We hear in the Mid-West is somewhat the same and yes the East Coast is full of liberal radicals and the West Coast is a breakfast made from Granola and other ingredients. I expected a conservative type of reply from Judy. Something like, "Well I can not condone your lifestyle, But I will not damn it or put it down." That is what I expected from Judith the friend who has always answered the questions I put to her. She knows that I measure my words in our conversations as she is a Scorpio and so am I. We all know that the female is superior as the female black widow spider and the praying mantis both consume their male lovers "if they can" the moment he makes an attempt to leave after the love making ends. I recall vividly that her reply was, "The only problem I see with what you are doing is most likely after five or six years you will lose the fact and reality that what you are doing is not considered acceptable in our country and society." Pretty heavy stuff from a friend and she also told me that if I was putting so much time and energy in making Miss Marlayna a success then you can certainly throw some of that energy on yourself. I never forgot those words and it has been just about six years since I had that memorable conversation with Judy in New Hampshire.

I have to say that Judy was wrong and she was right on and I will tell you how I can write that. She was wrong in saying that I would lose touch and reality with the fact that my lifestyle which constitutes having me dress in the sex of another. It has been a long time since then and I have grown and changed in so many ways. I realize that my lifestyle is not "politically correct" or "socially acceptable" and I see it vividly in technicolor. I have not let eight years out of the damn closet cloud my eyes and brainwash me. I see the messages society sends and the way the new agenda preaches family values. You can damn well bet that Newt Gingrich ain't gonna pay for some boy on Welfare who asks for a Dress, pink nappies and a rhinestone blouse. I see things and the politics of what I do as a man who wears a dress and heels. I see it on the face of people on a bus in Las Vegas. It was a look of surprise, wonder and deep thought. I can look in the mirror and say to myself, I am what I am and I can look in the mirror and sleep in peace. The people on the buses and on the streets of Las Vegas and Los Angeles have possibly seen me. My point is that I am not hiding and am not going to inhibit myself because I may be doing something society does not particularly like or understand. It took a long time for me to get to this point in my life but I am damn happy that I have come to terms with myself as to who and what I am as a person. Not an overnight affair as a lot of soul searching and introspection to find out what I needed and wanted. Yes I am on a roll and I am finding great happiness in my life that I never thought I would. I took Judy's advice about doing something positive and it was not long after that conversation that I enrolled in the Fashion and Design Program at the local city college. The education was so important and I can write about fashion and do it with some degree of intelligence and knowledge. I recall that when I first enrolled at the college my girlfriend Lori was not supportive and I vividly remember her saying "Fashion, you don't know anything about fashion." That night she was right and my reply to her was, "Yes, Lori you are right and that is why I am going to college so someday I will." I hope you enjoy my "Passion for Fashion" column this month as it is dedicated to Lori and my teachers at college. I also hope that some of this hit home because the first thing I realized once I save myself is permission to enjoy my life was that it was not going to be an easy path to follow. I also felt that I was all alone and one of the lost and lonely ones and you and I know that this is not true. We who crossdress and live this lifestyle also realize that every day is a blessing and one that most likely will find us dealing with coming out.

ARE YOU SURPRISED This petite glamorous senorita is not what she seems. I am straight acting Latin male by day, could you guess? I enjoy slipping into feminine attire for my own pleasant diversions. n interview with Joey Arias, this month's centerfold.

Marlayna: I would like you to tell me when you first started dressing.

Joey: Oh my god! Well, the first time for real was in 1988, well that was the first time I did drag on stage I mean. I have always been dressing up, all my life, maybe I've been doing this since I was a child to tell you the truth.

Marlayna: Was there any specific moment or incident that stands out as significant in your interest in drag?

Joey: I think when I saw the movie Cleopatra with Elizabeth Taylor. I just loved the whole thing, the make-up, the ceremony, and the whole thing. So, I saw that and I loved it. I was like ooohhh thank you. I thought that was really amazing and so I was completely inspired.

Marlayna: What direction did your interests take you?

Joey: I kind of got into more "fantasy drag" and then years later, it was 1988 when I put on my first woman's outfit. You know, with the heels and the tits, and the whole thing.

Marlayna: Did you use your name or have a stage name?

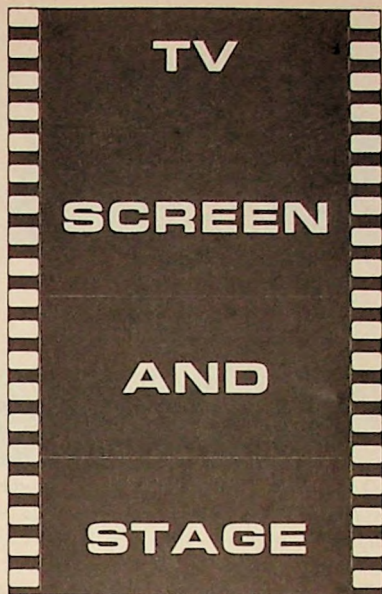

Joey: That was called Justine. It was another character, very supervixen, very big boobed you know, a really strong woman. It was kind of a fun thing and then I was doing it once every six months.

Marlayna: Was this in clubs and show lounges?

Joey: I started doing it at festivals and then someone saw a photograph of me and said, we want to use you as a calendar girl for a calendar called Drag 88, and so we did the shot and I was on the cover. After that they said, we are going to do a performance to promote the calendar, can you perform the character live?.

Marlayna: Did that get your career started?

Joey: Well, I did "Justine" live and a month later people were telling me that Justine was really cool! Then Justine was doing a live performance all of a sudden, after six months it was once a month. I got involved with Susanne Bartsch and doing parties with her, that was around 1989.

Marlayna: Let me jump on you, I first started reading about you doing "Strange Fruit" at the Lafayette. That's when I wrote to you and sent you a package. Can you fill me in on where you went from there?

Joey: Well, I went from Justine to the Billie thing and that all happened around 1990.

Marlayna: What was the inspiration for that?

Joey: That was just kind of a thing that was always there, always there. (I have to add that when Joey said this it was almost as if he was referring to Billie Holiday's spiritual personae inside him and it was a moving and emotional pull. I could see and feel the depth of his affinity to the late blues legend.) She was always there, and Andy Warhol heard me and thought I was really incredible and I should go ahead and carry on with it and I did that.

Marlayna: So the Billie thing just took off?

Joey: But, it wasn't in drag. I was actually still wearing suits and had long hair and I was not into drag. It wasn't until 1990 and that was the first time I put on a dress, because Lady Bunny said, "Do it in Wigstock in drag!"

Marlayna: So you would say that was the transition point?

Joey: Well, Wigstock was this big (Joey's voice trails off and he thinks a second coming back to reply) she said, "I don't want you to do Justine anymore, I want you to do something really beautiful."

Marlayna: Well, you looked fabulous in that Kimono. Is that what it was? Could you explain to me the history of the costume?

Joey: That was in 1994 when you saw me perform in the movie. The first time I did "Billie" was in 1990. It's not a Kimono, it is a copy of a dress worn by a lady from the ancient forbidden City Of China. More like a high Chinese drag. It is not Japanese. Even the hairdo is China, Grand China. (I feel Joey getting caught up in these grand designs, images, and visions. Being next to him one is in awe of his intensity, yet he has a presence that clams you making you feel comfortable yet unable to not feel his spirituality. This is a man who has raging waters that run deeper than Loch Ness depths.)

Joey: So, I just thought for Wigstock, for this particular one. I knew they would be filming it. I figured just why not go for it and give her, give Billie: The Empress. I mean why not! High China and give her power. I mean the symbol on the chest of the dress means "Good Life" or is the "Power of Life?" So that is how all this came around.

Marlayna: Did you come away with a good feeling after working with the people doing To Wong Foo, Thanks For Everything Julie Newmar?

Joey: Yes, it was fabulous and all the cast and crew had a great time.

Marlayna: What was the most fun?

Joey: Patrick (Swayze) and I hit it off real well. Wesley, John, and Patrick all adopted one of us gals to show them the ropes, and how to walk in heels. It was a joy coaching him in finding his feminine side. His wife was a darling and told me that I did a good job. I told her it was easy as Patrick already had the "Girl" in him. That sort of flustered her a little.

Marlayna: I have to ask about Faye Dunaway, was she a toughie to work with?

Joey: No, not at all. Like any professional she just expects everyone to come prepared and ready to work and have a good shoot. A charming lady with one hell of a sense of humor.

TABLEAU VIVANT

By-Miss Tasha LaBlush

RAG... why is a man dressed like a woman said to be "in drag?" Apparently it started out as theatre talk. Originally, comic actors who played female roles wore exaggerated dresses (sound familiar?) so long they dragged on the stage. I'm just wild for that drag trivia.

Told you last time my pervy cousin, Tunni Sexx, would give you the low down on a big kinky fetish hoe-down. So ta-da, here she is! "Fasten your seatbelts dahlinks and kooky kids the ride's gonna get bumpy!" Let's poke some fun at the "oh so decadent" and "I love every second of it" people that I know oh-so-well... Loads of bootlicking was going on at a recent scene party behind the Orange curtain south of LA. Helmet Newton himself would have run out of film! Plenty of trashy sluts & kinkos submitting to bondage and the tender kiss of the whip from their leather and latex clad Dominant Mistresses.

Yes, there were quite a few "little Elvis" sightings...ha!

My wacky older brother was there, Redmond Sexx. He never misses a good scene party. He's a door-to-door laytex rubber girdle salesman. He was so jazzed because he'd just made this big sale to a pair of lovely lesbians. I asked him what these ladies names were, he replied, "Zelda Gland and Sally Slutski. They heard me call them muff divers. They tied me up, spanked my ass red. Didn't think I was gonna get out of there alive!" he gasped. "But, but they loved my rubber girdles...ya' know Tunni..."

Now I love Redmond, dearly but when he starts to get that glazed far away look in his eyes, it's time to float away. He and Tennessee Williams were once roommates and plaster pottery pals at a sanatorium

This wasn't the first scene party to be held at this perfect pad. It's a private apartment fully furnished from the "It Hurts So Good Furniture" store. Instead of a living room with a coffee table and television (there were plenty of TVs) you'll find a black barred cage, one very Medieval looking rack, a padded isolation room, a glitzy casket and a wheel like Vanna has never spun, or maybe she has. Ha!

Personally, I attended to my own 2-headed slave from hell. Actually it was a very cute Swiss TV, Daffney and her laymate, Allison, sporting a new collar. Guess she finally got her shots. This soiree was well attended my many near and dear friends whose names I probably shouldn't mention except of course the one and only Crazy Sharon and Miss Heavenly PussyPants.

One last thing before turning you back to Tasha. This is for Chance Wayne, "Darling, I'm really so sorry about what happened. I just get carried away. I'm sure it'll only take a couple of days to heal. Let me make it up to you, Chance!" —

Thank you so much Tunni for your blow by blow. Maybe next time we'll do a party together, but you know me, I'm such a wussy puritan.

Finally, my great friend, Luke Swigo was telling me about being on the set of Paramount's "Birds of a Feather" starring Robin Williams and Gene Hackman. He watched three takes of the infamous dinner scene. "Every take was hilarious," he said.

Is good Darling. We need funny. Catch you next time! Love, Sin & Gin!

GENDER expression

A new conference that was held for the first time. It was the International Congress on Gender Cross-Dressing and Sex Issues, a dialogue between professionals and those in the community. The conference was held on February 23 through February 26 of this year at the Airtel Plaza Hotel in Van Nuys, California. This conference was really different from most of the conferences that I have attended over the years. It was the first time that the Professional Community came out to meet with people of the Trans Gendered Community. The conference was presented by the Center For Sex Research Institute for Social and Behavioral Sciences at California State University Northridge. The event was co-chaired by James L. Elias and Vern L. Bullough. The Gender Community really worked hard to make the convention a great success. There were many groups from around the country who participated in the conferences as co-sponsors, Female to Male Group of Northern California, International Foundation for Gender Education, Out Reach Institute for Gender studies, Resurgence Education Foundation, American Education Gender Information Services Society for the Scientific Study of Sex, and Tri ESS Society for Second Self.

People began to arrive on Thursday afternoon, they were able to register and get settled in. That evening there was a reception held to welcome all the participants and presenters. After the reception many of the participants and presenters all went to have something to eat and talk with friends. After dinner some of the people went to the bar and some of us were out in the lobby area socializing with friends and other participants. Friday morning work shops began at 9:00 a.m. and continued till 11:30 a.m., these work shops covered various subjects that were very interesting. I sat in on a couple workshops, one was use of Dance/Movement in adjustment of gender conflicted to a preferred roll. This workshop was presented by Annette Cordonnas-Romeo, a dance instructor and Jayne Thomas Ph.D., at Santa Monica City College. The other workshop that I was able to briefly set in on was Past, Present, and Future Models of Treatment. This was presented by Dallas Denny the Executive Director of AEGIS in Decatur, Georgia.

Both of these workshops were excellent and very informative, it was very hard to pick which workshop to go to. The other three workshops that were presented Friday morning were Chemical Approaches to Working With Gender Dysphoria, The Therapist Growth Process in Gender Work, and A Healthy Trans-Gender Role Model. From 11:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. was a lunch break. At 1:00 p.m. the opening preliminary sessions were held with the Co-chair James Elias Ph.D., Director of the Center of Sex Research at California State University Northridge. The Key Note Address was given by Vern L. Bullough Ph.D., founding member of the center. The Key Note Address was on where we have been, where we are, and where we might be going, was the purpose of this conference. The rest of the afternoon was reports and symposia that covered reports on current research, clinical management, counseling, therapy problems, and gendered rationality. There was a lot of information put out there that was a big help to people in the community and professionals who had come wanting to learn more about the Gender Community.

At 5:30 p.m. they broke for dinner and met back at the Balboa Room for a session of Miss Verna's Finishing School, for boys who want to be girls. After the reception a few of the girls decided to go over to the Queen Mary to see the show and go to the back bar to socialize a little before they go back to the hotel.

Saturday was another busy day. The parliamentary session began at 8:45 a.m., the mediator Bonnie Bullough Ph.D., covered recent breakthroughs in the biology of gender behavior. After a short coffee break they went back to the review of reports and symposia. Some of the new areas we were confronting were stereotypes about trans-gendered issues, problems, and changes. The Honors Awards luncheon began at 11:00 a.m. and after lunch was finished awards were given to Stanly Biber M.D., for work he has done in the sex reassignment area and Virginia Prince Ph.D., who was the first person to start a group to help get trans-gendered people out to meet together. A posthumous award was given to Lou Sullivan for the work he did in Female to Male Trans-Sexual Community. The award was accepted by James Green who has taken over Lou Sullivan's work in the Female to Male Community. Roger E. Peo was also given a posthumous award for work he had done in the Professional Community to help educate people about gender issues. Sandra Cole accepted the award and read a letter written by Roger's wife in appreciation for the award.

After lunch we went back to continue the reports and symposia with several areas being covered Anthropological Perspectives Toward Understanding Drugs and the Gender Community, Standards of Care, Legal Issues, Different Treatment Modalities, Photographic Portrayals, Religion and the Gender Community. The afternoon was very informative.

We broke at 5:00 p.m. to get ready for the Saturday Banquet that was sponsored by the Alliance of Southern California Gender Groups. Shela Kirk M.D., was the guest speaker and the entertainment was Stepping Out, a local musical group made-up of trans-generated people. After the banquet some of the girls decided to check out some of the night life before turning in for the night.

Sunday morning started off at 9:00 a.m. with Dr. Stanly Biber M.D., doing overview on sex reassignment surgery followed by Dr. Xia Zhao Ji M.D. from China, who reported on some new surgical developments in doing ovary and testicle transplants. After a short break we went back to hear presentations on each of the gender organizations, Resurgence Educational Association by John Roberts, AEGIS and What It Does by Dallas Denny, What Is IFGE and What Are The Issues by Yvonne Cook, Tri ESS Today by Carol Becroft, Androgyny by Shirley Bushwell, Outreach Institute by Ari Kane, Metropolitan Gender Program by Chelsea Goodwen and Rusty Moore. The final presentation given had to do with personal lifestyles. Over all this convention was very educational and opened a lot of new resources.

During the banquet I was sitting at the table with two friends and the rest of the table was filled with professionals from Northern California who didn't have much experience in the area of dealing with trans-generated people. They came to the conference in hopes to learn more about gender. This was an open door we had! We had a chance to talk about it, and the community, and all the things that are going on.

The over all consensus from all those who participated was that the conference was a big success and there is a good chance that another conference will be held again in a couple years. This conference was really a place that trans-generated people could learn more about themselves and their lifestyle. If you're interested in more information about the conference or the subjects that were covered, you can contact me.

We were treated to some wonderful music during dinner by Jessica (foreground) and his supportive wife who donned a mustache for the occasion.

This blond bombshell was one of the entertainers from Canada. She used her own voice and is an outstanding performer.

Another dance hall girl named Hilary.

ESPIRIT 95

Believe it or not this is a first time girl from Canada. Her name is Victoria.

This trio of lovelies were trying their luck at the Black Jack table, Cindy, Beverly and Dee.

Brooke is another Canadian beauty. She has been to 4 out of 5 Espirit events.

I caught another beauty, this is Patti from Portland. She works with the ladies in Portland doing make-up and hair. She also gives department classes at Espirit.

These gals were having a blast learning to line dance. Most of the ladies used this as an excuse to kick off their heels for awhile.

With five years under their corsets, the Espirit event is held every mid May in Port Angeles, Washington, is now one of the premier gala happenings in the country. This small Northwestern town (pop. 30,000) has not only the perfect backdrop for a relaxing time but the locals have seen enough out reach programs to be inviting and interested in the whole affair. Coincidentally, the month of May is also the town's celebration of Cultural Diversity.

It is hard to imagine a more picture perfect setting for a crossdressing adventure to unfold. Nestled at the base of the Olympic National Park, with full view of the snow-capped Hurricane Ridge and just a stone's throw to the Strait of Juan De Fuca, there is certainly something for everyone to do. At the same time there are many events in town such as the Juan De Fuca festival as well as many other festivals in neighboring towns. The weather is almost near perfect this time of year and everyone seems to be out and about having a good time.

Saturday night was Monte Carlo night and it was a full evening of entertainment. Upon arriving at the ballroom, each of the ladies were given a packet of play money and were able to gamble at a variety of tables in hopes of winning some fabulous prizes. If gambling was not your thing you could dance the night away with some local professionals who were hired to teach Country Western Line dancing.

I'm afraid you caught me. I was just checking to see if she bought her boobs from me.

This is another of our excellent entertainers from Canada. These girls were really cooking.

A warm summer evening in Southern California and it is so sweet when those cool breezes hit the valley. The comforting winds that slide in over Santa Monica beaches and hits the valley also brings out the creatures of the night.

Fetish runs amok on the fourth Saturday evening at the Queen Mary Show Lounge in Studio City. By far this club has all a girl could want and more. Ladies and gents coming in from all over to see and be seen. This party has to be the longest running weekend "fetish" party on the West Coast. The event is sponsored by TV EPIC and the door prizes are donated by Versatile Fashions. Featured is a large buffet stocked with plenty of tasty treats. Plenty of FREE TV Epics and recently Versatile has donated current video's from their catalogue to be given away as door prizes. This months haute couture fetish celebration will be held on the 28th. In edition, come to my birthday celebration. See you there.

Lady Ann here with my second attempt to do my writing thing. Richard was not working this evening but we had Richard from the front room in the back bar. I finally ventured up to catch a few minutes of the show. Lots of people in the crowd smiled at me so I left. I was introduced to Robert who owns the club and he asked me to tell Marlayna that he wanted to talk to her. Wendy did not show up and I had a good seat to watch the action. The buffet was a good one and I did not take a free copy of EPIC as they mail me one. Who are those people playing chess and turning the place into a "cheers" bar? I got cornered by Christine and she scared the hell out of me. I am new to this and still wide eyed as they say. I write this ditty cause I like watching and testing the waters. I like the club and the parties and think it's neat I get to write about them. When I talked to the Pathway Communications, they wanted me to write about the parties. Well I am but I never promised em a rose garden. Never said I was a Hedda Hopper or Rod Mckuen. I just asked them if they needed a writer and well I should go and enough of this, I will see you at the next On The Scene.

Regards,
Miss Ann Thropsit
