ON THE SCENE NITE & FANTASY FASHION FETISH NITE at the QUEEN MARY SHOW LOUNGE

“Wigstock West” held in San Francisco was fabulous! You should have been there! I just returned and I am pleased to be able to fill you in on the show and the fun. I also took two hundred and fifty-seven photos and put new meaning to the term “camera time.” Paying for this trip myself, I had to keep expenses down but I did hit a few nice eateries. The city is a charming one, with those rolling hills and Victorian houses. Pretty as a picture, and I will be returning soon.

What about the event, Lady Bunny, and the show; you are asking yourself. Hold on, I am getting to it, I knew I would have a lot of time pounding the keyboard when I returned home. So many things I have to tell you and where to start I ask myself. Well, I arrived Friday afternoon and was at the “Hotel Triton” around 1:15 p.m. I was sharing a room with a friend from the “Queen Mary Show Lounge.” Maybe you have heard of her, she is the infamous, notorious, and internationally know sinister, Jazmin. Our plan was to take the same flight but she was behind schedule as she had just returned from a trip to France where Miss Thing, as she is sometimes referred to, performed at the one and only “Cannes Film Festival.” We found out, like many, that those well made plans are foils of mice and ladies. I hit “LAX” and she was not there, and the plane left without here. I was not worried as I knew she would show up, and the best thing for me to do was get on with my agenda and hit the “Hotel Triton,” which was where all the cast and people working on the event stayed.

After I had been given a room key, I was getting all my make-up and stuff out and ready, then noticed I needed make-up remover and called the bell desk to find out where I could find a store that had make-over remover and nail polish. Then I found a place, while I am in the elevator going up to my room, I start chatting with a charming man. Come to find out, he is coordinating the fashion show. Minutes later, I was in the dressing room picking out the outfit I would be wearing in, you guessed it, the fashion show.

When I returned, Miss Thing was in the room waiting for me. Plans were made, and we were taking a limousine to the affair. It was picking us at 5:30 p.m. I started getting “dolloed up” and asked Jazz why she almost did not make it. She was behind schedule because she had just returned from Cannes, France. Where she performed at the prestigious “Cannes Film Festival,” and she had a spectacular time.

Before I go any further, I want to tell you that Lady Bunny did a spectacular job in putting the event together. This year a number of top name companies sponsored the event. “M-A-C Cosmetics,” being the major one. I was backstage, and I will tell you that Bunny worked her cute little tail off. She deserves all the big thank you calls, and cards, she gets.

I have so many interesting experiences and things to tell you, I do not know where to start. Well, I never expected to be in the fashion show and this was a treat. This time I did not have hours to think about being in this part of the affair. One thing I noticed was, that for the first time doing a fashion show, I was not nervous at all. Yes, I did good and it was a lot of unexpected fun, and I wore the “princess” outfit.

As expected, Jazmin had left with Bunny, Mistress Formika, Linda Thompson, and a few others. I hit the front desk for a room key and while I was just finishing with my change, the front desk called. The limousine man was down there and waiting for one Ms. Lacie. I got a few photos, and out front, a group of tourists took photos of me with them.

Then it was off to “Fort Mason Festival Pavillon,” for the big event. The scene is what I love to refer to as a horror show. Organized and unorganized mayhem, with thousands of people. Drag Queens as far as the eye could see. The building looked like a huge, and I mean huge, airplane hanger. There were about four lines in front, and all had thirty to fifty people in them. I have never seen so many costumes, outfits, and gender benders of all persuasions in my life. I was loving every minute of it, and I never stopped taking photos from the time I arrived to the time I left.

Yours truly popped one hundred dollars for my ticket, and that included entrance to the VIP room, which was called, “La Lounge.” Inside this place was as big as a football field. I traipsed to the rear of the building doing my “camera time” dance all the way. Up the stairs to “La Lounge,” and I find Miss Jazmin. She is chatting to Bunny and Lois. I chat with them for a few minutes and then I spot the two divas in black, known as “The Dueling Bankheads.” They are great entertainers, and told me they will be performing in Los Angeles at the club called, “Atlas.” I got a few photos and told them I will surely plan on attending the “Atlas” gig. Then I spied John Kelly who does the “Wigstock” anthem ala Joni Mitchell. I met John at the premiere of “Wigstock: The Movie,” at the Directors Guild building last year. I sat down for a bit as I really admire Mr. Kelly. I first read about him four years ago, and have been a fan following his blossoming career. He is a sweet, kind man. I look forward to seeing him again. Hopefully, he will come

to Los Angeles to perform this year.

I mentioned that I got backstage, and this gave me access to performers and plenty of photo opportunities. When Miss Jazmin spied the silver plastic bracelet band on my wrist, she went off.

"Girlfriend," she exclaimed, and she pointed to the glittery band. "How in the world did you get a backstage pass when Lady Bunny's personal assistant could not get one?"

I smiled at Jazmin and told her this, "I have my ways."

She just looked at me in amazement and smiled. Later Jazzy as I call her, and I, sat in the chairs in the front of the stage for the VIP's. Yours truly was having a wonderful time as were the thousands who were there with me. Have to say, that years ago, I predicted that the gender bender bandwagon was going to change our lives. The door is being ripped off the hinges, and the closet is opening up. The fact that basket ball superstar, Dennis Rodman came out in his book, "As Bad As I Wanna Be," and on the Opra Winfrey Show, admitting that he was an active cross-dresser and has no problem telling and talking about it, is one good example.

Back to the event, and oh it was fabulous with a capital "F." It was a treat to meet so many of the performers and a few will be on the cover of TV Epic in the future. There were people in costumes there that would make your eyes pop out. Jazmin told me that some of these ladies spend a whole year getting ready for this one. Yes, by far this is, and most likely will be, the biggest "drag" parties ever put on. I say this because on Labor Day Weekend Bunnie is doing "Wigstock" in New York. I am making plans to attend this one, and hopefully they will work out. See you there!

Now all this time I am taking photos and stopping people to get them to pose. Myself along with thousands of other people were making Kodak, Fuji film, and a lot of photo labs very happy. I picked up a "Wigstock" T-shirt, and a sexy friend I met named, Vida de Ville scored me one of those ten inch plastic cocktail cups with tangerine emblazoned boldly in the colorful plastic base. These fancy booze holders, were definitely the souvenir of choice. Reason is that there just weren't enough of them and they ran out. At least three people asked me where they could be found. Owners were holding onto them and they were not throwing them away when they left. I have mine, and I use it for the quarters that I do my laundry with.

Have to tell you that I totally enjoyed my time in San Francisco, and you should visit the city. A wonderful town with a "Old Man Time" telling you he has been here. Victorian houses and funky brick buildings and yes, the trolleys. When you go you must consider staying at the "Hotel Triton" located at 342 Grant Street, San Francisco, CA 94108. Their phone number is (415) 394-0500 and toll free reservation line is (800) 433-6611.

The place is a treat, and it's one hundred and forty rooms have been described as "Alice in Wonderland" meets "Salvador Dali." Prestigious "House Beautiful" magazine loved the place, and called it, "The hit hotel by the sea." The San Francisco Chronicle noted the eclectic feel and reported, "Adventurous design!"

It features three designer suites with a fourth being built. One was done by the famous guitarist for the "Grateful Dead" rock group, Jerry Garcia. Another was done by local artist, Susan Berganti who is a local designer. "Wailing Walls" artist, Wyland did the third up, and the fourth is being done by local guitar hero, Carlos Santana.

Yourstruly plans on returning to San Francisco, and I will surely make my reservations at the "Hotel Triton." When I find an establishment that knows how to treat our community right I endorse them, and return when I have the opportunity, and that is why I write at length about this hotel.

Last night I and many of my good friends, old and new, celebrated the seven year anniversary of the "On The Scene Nite" parties. As you can imagine, it was a very emotional night for me. That day I went to see my Mother, she is in the hospital, and looks like by the time this has been sent to Pathway and published, I will be at a funeral. So for me, it is very much the "Best" of times and the "Worst" of times, and most likely you have been there in your life too. Before I got dolled, I had a good cry for myself and then it was time to get on with the show.

Driving up that Hollywood 101 was different this evening, and the lights did not glimmer as brightly. I could not cry now because my make-up would be all over my dress. Those lines of silky black mascara rolling in salty rivers down my face, I have known before. This night was a time for me to mourn inside, and also to celebrate and when I hit the "Queen Mary Show Lounge" parking lot. I listened to a few songs from the soundtrack of "Kiss Of The Spider Woman," the musical, starring Chita Rivera. And once again I was pretending that I was in the movies, and for three hours I had a wonderful time. So did all who attended and that is the bottom line.

Over the years so many people from around the world have attended this event, and many say it is history. This evening was a special one because it officially starts a transformation. Seven years ago I asked a friend to be my partner in this affair, and for seven years she worked the door. When I asked her to be my partner, I did not realize it was very much like a marriage. We did not live together or sleep together as many have assumed over the years. We had known each other for a while and she seemed a good choice. She was, and I needed, a partner because I could not, and can not, do it all alone. There is a lot more to putting on a party than cutting up some cheese and sticking toothpicks into pieces of cheesecake. It takes a commitment and dedication, but most of all you have to love what you are doing. From the start, we both were focused on having fun and doing good for ourselves and the community we both love and belong to. We worked hard and every so often there were things that we had different points of view on. I told her that when I asked her to be my partner, I told her that I felt it was akin to us hitting the road in a Cadillac and traveling across the country. We could not expect a smooth highway and there would be turns and tire blowouts. Maybe an accident or two. The point was to keep focused on the party. Keep it going and let us deal with the in-between and situations on the road. I had a full-time job at the time, and for the first three and a half years, the parties and my writing were a part-time thing. My partner criticized me for not doing enough. Telling me that she was doing this full-time and she understood that I had a job and lived in Long Beach. Not long after that, I lost my job and I was not eager to find a new one.

After seven years working down the docks I needed a vacation, and I took one. It was then I decided that, like my partner, I would focus more time on the parties and my writing. Soon ladies in the club were talking about the competition that was an issue with us. I had started to really get involved in the events and found I had a career.

At the "Cast Party" for "Wigstock: The Movie" last year, I met Sandy Tang who is wife of Thai cook, Tommy Tang. In our first conversation, she mentioned that she knew my partner. Seems that my partner had been going to dinner at Tommy's and had mentioned the parties we were doing at the "Queen Mary Show Lounge." The next evening, I met Sandy again at the premiere of the movie. I asked her about the possibility of me doing a little "T" Party at the "Tommy Tang's" on Melrose Avenue. A week later, I got the green light and I was very happy. From friends I heard that my partner was very upset because she had been making plans to talk to Sandy also. I know nothing of her intentions, but I was first to approach Sandy. Needless to say, this put a crack in the flower pot and things were never the same.

Personally, I had found my calling and it turned me into a seven/twenty-four. Four the last three years I have been working seven days a week, and twenty-four hours a day. Many times I write at 2 a.m. in the morning and finish at 4:00 a.m. Work at "Centaurin Spartacus," selling advertising, and then come home to work on my many projects. So it is easy to think back to the time when I looked at this as a part-time thing.

Last year I put on an event called, "Wigfest West 95," and there was a fashion show in it featuring ladies from the community that are friends of mine. Nina Charese had done a fabulous job as my fashion show coordinator in the past. When I mentioned to my partner my plans and that I wanted a fashion show included, she did not like the idea, this surprised me. I am a community person, and that is the bottom line again. The fun and joy for me is asking and having ladies that I know join me in these shows. How could I do three events with Nina and the "girls," then do a bigger one and not invite them? No way would I leave my friends out of a show when they were an integral part of it. I wanted to hang-up the phone on my partner, but did not. I listened to her and told her I still liked the idea of a fashion show.

During the week I talked to Melissa Foster, and she suggested I put on "Wigfest West 95" myself, without my partner, and at this time she was looking to do her own event at a club on Santa Monica Boulevard. Five and a half years into it, and two wrecked cars later, we are going down the road together but we both want the wheel and control. There is a saying that tells us that competition is a good thing and can be a wonderful motivator. I started pushing a seven/twenty-five and said to myself, We shall see what happens.

This year I will be doing bigger and better things at the parties I sponsor at the club. Little Debbie and I will be working together on fun events and themes for many of the evenings. Yours truly, will be working the door and greeting my guests when you come to relax and socialize or party hearty and dance.

Do you know that the one who passes the harshest judgments and criticisms on you as a person is yourself? It is true my friends, and this is very much a two edged sword. Years ago I followed the story of a truly heroic woman, that was in way ways, the ultimate tragedy. Scientists who study us humans have an experiment which focuses on time, our bodies, and minds reactions, and how our twenty-four hour schedule and time system plays in lives. What they do is build a small apartment underground with no clocks. No way for the person to find the time in New York or Los Angeles. The sun and moon are gone also so this leaves you basically running like a blind rat. Eventually, your body adapts to and finds it's own "running time." Some people go for three days and sleep for two, and others do just the opposite. The other thing is that this isolation gives the person underground plenty of time to think about life and what it is all about. Unfortunately I lost the article when I moved to my present apartment, but I do know the gist of the story by heart.

The woman was French and she was a writer that told us of her experience. She wrote about how we can be our own worst judges and enemies. That many times we needlessly crucify ourselves with a feverish masochism that is a horrible part of human nature. She wrote eloquently of the seven months underground, and to this day her words still have been with me. I think it was three months later that I spied an article in the evening newspaper. It was the story of a French woman who had committed suicide after spending seven months underground.

Yes, I cried at the time and I am once again upset because this story and the observations she made had great impact on me. Tonight I realize this because for ten years I always felt that I could not really call myself a writer. You are probably surprised, but there is a good reason, and that is maybe the other side of the sword. I feel there is a fine line between putting expectations on oneself and doing that negative crucifying and self depreciation. A long time ago I had a friend say this to me, "You know, I decided that it was very easy to quit putting myself down. One finds in life that many times there are others who will do that to me. So why should I do it to myself?"

In-between it all, I feel that maybe setting goals and having realistic expectations on oneself comes into play. The first thing my "Cal Farmer" told me was that we must all set goals. Multiple ones that will help us focus on our lives better and help us be a success. The goal can be just getting through the last two hours of the day. Maybe getting past that two hours of overtime on Friday. The goals can be put on just about every facet of your life and be a positive. Now one must first take a look at what you want, and decide if it is one that you can reach. Yours truly wanted to find access to the movie industry and although it was a dream, when the situation was there then I decided to make that dream a goal. Now if I had said to myself, Marlayna, you are going to the set and soon you will be a star with top billing, that is an unreasonable goal to set and will most likely put me on the path to "The Disappointment Hotel" in Heartbroken City.

Years ago, I took an acting class and someone said to me, "So you want to go to Hollywood and be a by star like everybody else?"

I recall that my reply was this, "No, I do not want to be a big star. I would like to get into the business, and if I did, my goal would be to be the best actor that I could be."

Now getting back to me, and my writing, and how this all relates. Since I was a teenager I wanted to be a writer, but I always judged myself and the verdict was guilty. I was harsh on myself, and felt that I never could look in the mirror and call myself a writer. A few years ago I felt it was time to look in the mirror. My writing had gotten a lot better, and I was hearing from men all across the country that my monthly letters were being warmly received, and that I was doing a lot of positives. I put off looking for the word writer written in lipstick on my make-up mirror, not wanting to deal with the goal being reached as I felt it would distract me. So I just kept writing and loving this worn out keyboard because I love doing this. I must, and when you write or show up at one of my events that makes it all worth while. So I had to find a way to justify this decision and the closest and easiest one was self-criticism. This was probably not a good thing, but it did push, me making me work twice as hard to reach that goal of being a respected writer.

A few days after I got back from the "Wigstock West 1996" affair, I found a fax in one of the envelopes that had all my material from the trip. It was to the "Hotel Triton" and basically said that I was a reporter from Southern California covering the event, and that all my credentials had the name Marlayna Lacie. I held the fax for a minute, or two, and then I broke down in tears. I called my dear friend Marla, and told her that I felt like I was the surface of the moon. Being splattered by a huge blitzkrieg of meteors with devastating impact. I recall very vividly that I said this to her, "Marla, I think I finally arrived and that I am truly a writer."

She listened and then there was a long pause before she said this to me, "Marlayna, you arrived years ago. You just have been busy to notice."

Those words I will remember forever, and now I have plenty of reasonable goals. I try not to judge myself, but I know it is part of scheme of things. Every so often, like right now, I think about the French woman and her insight, strength, and courage. Also the tragedy of her death, and how it can be that she judged herself. Finding a verdict that is hard to imagine because of her words about being our own worst judge and enemy. Should you be familiar with the story, and have an article a book or information on the French woman, please write me or send me a copy as I really would like to have it.

Ladies, it is a very rare occasion when I ask you to consider doing me a favor. Traveling around the country, I have heard from quite a few ladies that TV Epic is not available in their area. When you visit your local adult bookstore, if they do not carry TV Epic, can you do this? Either ask them why they do not carry it, or send me the name of the store. Also if you can find the name of any magazine distributors in your area send them along as well. At this point, my goal is to have TV Epic available in every city so you can find a copy for yourself.

I wish you love,
Marlayna

wigstock west

A wigged-out welcome to all of you at the very first Wigstock West!

As a little "girl" in Chattanooga, Tennessee, I never dreamed I'd become an outdoor festival organizer when I grew up. But here I am, with Wigstock NY in its 12th year (Let's see, I'm 22 now...gee I must have started this bitch when I was all of 10 years old!) and now expanding the event to the West Coast. "Baghdad by the Bay" seems a natural choice for our hair-brained histrionics...what with the gorgeous sunny weather, the abundance of dynamic local divas and even a prime location near one of SF's oldest gay institutions...Alcatraz!

I made plans to bring out a hand-picked handful of New York's most scintillating gender illusionists to round out the bill. Unfortunately, all of the scintillating queens had to cancel, and so we kinda got stuck with a motley crew of NYC's haggiest heifers. (Just kidding.)

So screw your wigs on tight (it's windy by the water!) and get ready to unleash the hormonal convergence and issue in the Age of Asparagus. Honey, we ain't here to make no political statement...just to let it all hang out and flip our wigs!

Today I worked around the house and put together some material for upcoming issues of TV Epic. I also did some shopping and packing, as I am preparing to travel to San Francisco once again. Yours truly is rooming with one notorious Jazmine who just returned from the "Cannes Film Festival." She was spotted doing a number at the "Queen Mary Show Lounge" and was asked to do a few numbers for the folks in gay Paris or Pair-reeeee.

She called as planned and we discussed the details, then I asked her about what type of outfit I should wear. In her reply she said something that I have told others. "Girl, the event is high end, but you have to wear what is comfortable for you."

Well, those words are still ringing, and it made me think about a few things. First of all it has been a long time since I asked anyone there opinion because I was unsure about what to wear. This is the biggest drag event of the year, and I will be photographed and be asked to be filmed from cable TV talk shows. I want to look good and present a positive image for myself and the interests I represent. I have to say that I will find a few things to bring, and I plan to do some shopping when I arrive. I am very excited about this, and I will be covering my own expenses for the first time. I plan to use the photos for this publication and possibly find another publication that will want different photos.

Tonight I am looking back over where I was five years ago, and where I am now. What about you, hasn't cross-dressing changed us both? I feel the answer for you has to be yes, and hopefully for the best. This will be an interesting piece because I plan to write it in two parts and this is numero uno. My before "Wigstock West" and after the event feelings and thoughts. For me I have constantly found myself seeking new and exciting places to go. Many times this brings me into straight (I hate using the word), establishments. This forces me to deal with "them" and "them" to deal with me, and over the years, I have become very comfortable with this interaction.

Now traveling to "The City by the Bay" to stay in the same hotel with a bunch of New York "drag queens" is something that is giving pause. My heart says that I shall go with the intent and purpose of having fun and that is the bottom line. I also am a little apprehensive because I will not be on my own turf. I will not have the backup and support of the local community. My mind is made-up, that as a writer covering the event, I will do what I have done before and that is deliver the goods.

Dealing with Coming Out

by Marlayna Lacie

Last year I did a few lines on the politics of married men spending family money and hiding the "en-femme" activities from wife and children. Since then, I have often thought about the men who do this and how they deal and justify their actions. Right from the start, I will tell you that I do not pass judgment on anyone. No one has the right to do that, except the legal system. I do feel that having opinions and setting personal standards of conduct is important.

Nothing wrong with having a set lists of things and experiences I will, and will not, deal with. For me I have a big problem with married men who seek other cross-dressers. Not for friendship and going to dinner and local and national events, but for after midnight meetings at "Hotel Hell #69," for a night of knee knocking or whatever! Recently, I received a letter from a married man and this is exactly what he was looking for. I feel I was justified in returning his photo and letter, and I told him it was $300.00 for a session. Now should he write and tell me he has the money, and is willing to pay, I will write and tell him to think about what he plans to do and that he should spend the money on his wife and kids. I'll tell him that he is playing a dangerous game that could hurt him and his family, that I could not take money that should go to his family, maybe someone will, but I will ask him to think about it very seriously. There are hundreds of horror stories out there and when we hear them we say it could "never" happen to me. Well, it might happen because you don't drown in the pond unless your swimming in it. We can find a few distasteful scenarios that this path can lead to.

James decides that since wife and kids are out of town and he will hit the local "red light" district. A place where gender benders hang on the corner and practice the oldest profession in the world. He wants to pick-up a hot she-male and hit a motel room. He has his "girl things" and wants his new friend to dress him up. Then they can have some hot lesbian love.

Let's start with the most common "snafu" to make an attorney who handles messy divorces happy. The police have the area staked out, and James and his new he-she friend are pulled over and arrested. It does happen, and most likely the man who gets caught tells himself, "That can't happen to me."

Another good one is the set-up where the girl on the street has friend who waits in the room for the bait to bring home a victim. When he or she hears the fun couple coming in the room to play, they go and hide under the bed. While James, shall we say, has a fling and wears his new heels, his wallet and contents are inspected by the friend under the bed. Worse than that, James could pick-up a lady who has drugs on her, or has an STD (sexually transmitted disease). We all know there are quite a few of those around.

A long time ago I realized that we all have the power to make choices and decisions, and many times we fail ourselves. We can only accept responsibility for our irresponsibility. Then go on and deal with the repercussions afterwards and hopefully learn from the experience. But if one takes the time to sit down and put some serious thought into those fantasies and proposed action, it might possibly save that person and his family from a lot of pain and heartache. No I will not pass judgment on you my friend, if you are a married man and hide it from your spouse. I will say that you should carefully consider all your actions. I ask you to look in the mirror, and when you look, can you feel good about what you do. If you can look long and hard, and know in your heart that you are O.K. with all of it fine, and I wish you the best because I realize how tough it is to be trapped and not able to come out to wife and family.

I also feel that a police call or a call from the hospital are part of the territory that goes with behind the family's back activities. Especially when one is only focusing on getting all dolled up to set the stage for recreational sex. If you are a married man and are into picking up prostitutes from the gender community, take a few minutes to think about the whole picture and consider my thoughts and hopefully maybe one sentence or paragraph will hit home. If it does then you think a little more, and I will too, and I will write more about the subject and these issues in the future. I do this because I enjoy it and it is a constant in my life. I find great joy and satisfaction when I write about this nebulous issue with so many intense feelings. I refer to it once a month as dealing with coming out.

It is 10:30 p.m. in the evening, and today Monica Dare and I were talking on the set of the movie "Gridlock," starring, Tim Roth from "Pulp Fiction" and most recently "Rob Roy," for which he was up for an Oscar. Singer/rapper Tupok Shakur is also starring in the film.

During a break in filming, I waited for a good time and asked Tim and Tupoc for photo or two. Both were gracious and kind enough to consent, and the photos are on my office wall. When I returned from the little photo shoot with the stars, Monica told me that she was more than pleased with my professional attitude and how I conducted myself for 14 hours on the set. Monica has been doing something I thought I wanted to do, but it was not to be. She has been in the industry for quite some time, and recently she has been acting as a talent scout and agent for me and many of the ladies in the local community. Monica made a comment to me that I never expected and it was special and most memorable. She said, "Marlayna, never again will you call yourself a dragqueen. You are now a "screen queen" and there are not that many of us."

Needless to say, in many ways those words are very much a message to me that one of my biggest dreams is possibly becoming a reality. When I moved from Huntington Beach at fourteen years old, I was not happy to have to move back East. I recall that about a year later a friend asked me what I wanted to do with my life. My reply was that I wanted to go to Hollywood and work in the movie industry, possibly be an actor. The laughter and ridicule cut me to the quick. I realized that for many this fantasy was a common one, and I decided that I would keep my dream to myself. Tonight I sit and look back at that time, and it is a very emotional period and time for me.

So where do I go to cry and say to myself, O.K., and what now? Well, what comes to mind first is the fact that two years ago, we men who cross-dress were just getting some well needed exposure and positive PR. Yes, it started with the English film, "The Crying Game" and the last hit "drag" movie was the smashing hit, "The Birdcage." Never did I think that these changes would come to my dress filled closet. So we never know what tomorrow may bring and I wish I knew were that old friend was who laughed at my dreams and aspirations. No I am not a star, and will not get my name on the credits, but I was on the job and will be paid and recognized for my small contribution.

I also feel that this is a clear and positive indicator that the times, they are a changin. I want to say that Miss Monica Dare should get a lot of recognition and credit for her efforts. She decided that she would not only find work for me and ladies in the community, but if there was none then she would create it and that she did. Convincing a number of casting directors into hiring her and the ladies she knows and represents. At this point she has placed at least a dozen ladies in mostly "extra" positions. We call ourselves "human wallpaper" but this does not mean that we do not play an integral part in the production. We can not all be the star or co-star, and there are plenty of positions that are available if you want to do it. One thing I understood from the start, and many ladies do not, is the fact that this is not easy work. The hours are long and the pay is minimal. But the other benefits and joys can make up for this in a myriad of ways. One can meet hundreds of people and from them you can find other jobs in the industry. I think show business people have to be the biggest networkers of them all.

Why is it that I always get these bright ideas at 11 pm? Anyway, after flying up to San Francisco to attend "California Dreamin," then hitting the blue skies again to the "City by the Bay" to attend "Wigstock West 1996," has given me pause and plenty to think and write about. A few minutes ago,

I scribbled down three little lines that are very big questions. Ones that I immediately started seeking answers to. I realized right away that this would take a little research and that is O.K., so I will jot them down for you and then I will hit the late night news and return with a few answers that I can come up with. I have to ask about where we were as a group and community.

Ten, fifteen and even thirty years ago men were cross-dressing. They said that J. Edgar Hoover was a transvestite, and wore his favorite red dress to very private parties. I also heard that there was legal ramifications with a passage on the books called, "The Masquerade Law." Dressing "en-femme" was against the law. Has there been a book written that tells us the complete history of this law? No, I have to look into this a little more and maybe we all should.

Another good one is, "Where are we at as a group and community?" It is 1996, and for the last two years we have been publicly outed by the "media." Sold and exploited by the entertainment industry and fodder for the talk shows. "Clothestime" was looking for a way to attract young women to buy their clothes. So they find and get big results with a series of erotic and enticing gender-bending commercials. Amazing what thirty seconds of video can translate into. Major corporations are sponsoring "drag" parties all over the country. Rock and rollers are getting in on the drag thing and one good thing from this is the comeback of Jayne County.

So where are we as a community this year, and next I pose the big one to you all. Where do we want to go? Do we go with the gays and seek to rip the closets off the door? No, you are saying. Marlayna are you bonkers? Well, I do not think that us men who cross-dress will ever be able to all come out. Not realistic and a fairy tale, and I know this. So if all of us can not wear a dress whenever we want, what is the answer to the many problems we face now? To me it is a society that is free of bigotry, racism, and discrimination in all shapes, colors, and forms. A night when we all can live as we want, and not have to face job loss or divorce and other negatives I do not care to dwell on.

There are many answers and ways to look at these questions that I just came up with. How about you and me working on this, and maybe between all of us, we can figure out where to start.

PANTIES, PANTIES, PANTIES ... lovely, silky, shiny Panties. Do panties get to you, Baby? Would you not be caught in the emergency room without your sissy panties? Would you even DREAM of going out without wearing, without feeling your soft panties pulled tight across your smooth ass? Don't ya' just simply adore the delicate panty seams pulling, tugging and teasing you between your hot legs and burning crotch? Oh Baby...aren't you absolutely, fabulously transported to Femina?...and you're the cosmic Panty Queen and all your horizons are filled with the kaleidoscopic color cavalcade of feminine PANTIES, PANTIES, PANTIES ...

My confession to you sweetie dahlinks is "yes, I do wear my panties everywhere I go, even to the emergency room!" Therefore, I have an abundant collection of panties. I even have a special drawer that I call my "One-Hundred Panty Drawer." My goodness, all these juicy little secrets you're getting from me today, Baby. Panties are the feminine heart of my transvestite being. I start with my panties then dress outwardly from there. A bra, (sometimes matching the panties), a garter belt or shiny girdle with garters, sheer nylon stockings, sexy spike high heels...well, you get the picture. If you don't get the picture at least get me a gin and tonic, Baby! Ha Ha...

Here's a call to any of you dear lusty readers that would like to share with me a special Panty Moment that you may have had recently or like when you were very young. I would dress in my two step-sister's panties, petticoats, and dresses when I was about nine or ten. We'd play dress up games after school when we had the house all to ourselves. It was playful and fun, with my oldest sister (she was fourteen) being the boss of how to dress me up including that lipstick experience I've already told you about. Even before that, I knew that yucky cotton underwear wasn't for me! So, I've always retained that playful, innocent spirit even today. Sure, it turns me on way big time to the max but to me it's always been a perfectly natural thing for me and my personality to do. I loved to paint my toenails too, and run around barefooted and pantied on the green grass of my Florida lawn.

If you write me I'll try to relate your Panty Moment in this column or if you'd rather not, just say so and I won't. One other thing, if you'd like to be in a Panty Chain Letter send me a stamped envelope (please!) and I'll send you the info. It's really fun to get pairs of panties in the mail from an absolute stranger! You might even get some kicks from sending a pair of panties to another stranger. No money is involved with this but like they say on the boob tube, it's for a limited time so act today! If you can, do both things; tell me about your panties (so fun to write) and send the stamped envelope for the Panty Chain Letter.

If you really, really love your panties then you'll want to check out Princess Productions, P.O. Box 10883, Chicago, IL 60610. Enter the magic realm of their magazine Panty Lines. Confess to Princess Lacey (no relation to Marlayna) how you simply can't do without Panties in your life. The Princess will turn you on to the best panty magazines on the planet Femina! Tell her that your friend Miss Tasha told you to write because for a sissy the transformation begins when you step into a shiny, lacey, feminine pair of nylon Panties. I feel very lucky and honored to know the Princess and you'll love her too! She has several other panty/petticoat magazines that are also fantastic or panty-tastic!

My friend Belle from New York recently spent a week at my place. We went inside one of those dollar stores. I found three panties to a pack for a buck-fifty. High-waisted shiny nylon panties in baby blue, soft yellow and sissy pink. There was this young girl at the cash register. She was very pretty and Hispanic. She seemed to be the only worker in the store.

"Look at these panties, Belle. We've got to buy some they're beautiful and so cheap!" You'd think we had cracked Tuts's Tomb or something and found a huge Panty Treasure.

"Yeah Tasha, I'll buy some and you buy some. We'll go home and make a big Panty Nest! Let's buy ten packs each, it's a good deal."

"Do you think thirty pairs each will be enough?"

"We can always come back before I leave and buy some more!"

Getting into it, "Yeah, we can buy some more," I said as I scooped up the clear plastic bags containing three pairs of panties in each bag.

We were also doing this just for the kinky fun of buying all these panties

and then standing in line to check out with them. I don't care what else you may buy to go with your panties the mere fact that two people are standing there with thirty pairs of panties each, well it was a trip, Baby.

We're standing in line and you know we've just got to drop five or six packs of our panties. Those bags were slippery! These women behind us are checking us out and start talking to each other. Belle is fluent in Spanish so I ask her what they're saying?

"They're wondering if you're wearing panties right now." Belle holds a pack up as if to open them. "Should we?"

We're still three or four people from the register. "Sure, let's."

Belle opens the panties, takes out the pink pair and holds them up to my waist. Hey, we're in a dollar store. I don't care.

Speaking up so they can hear; "They'll fit great, nice and tight...and they're a different shade of pussy pink than the panties I'm wearing right now!" We're having a ball and the women think we're both dizzy pansies!

What do two people do with 60 pairs of shiny nylon panties? Now wouldn't you like to know!

Love, Sin and Gin,

Miss Tasha LaBlush

P.S. Roy Nipple, you'll be in next time! Computer Jeff (Chance Wayne), thanks for buying me a drink Baby, at the Queen Mary. Next time let's dance! Wolfgang, a special thank you and wish I could have been in that Porsche 917K hittin' 230 on the Mulsanne Straight, feeling that torque thru the bottom of my silky panties!

"Esprit 96"

Our first gal is Teri, she is a tall, leggy beauty from Texas. She is wearing one of the new Jim Bridges' dresses. This comes in a wide variety of colors with a matching bolero or box jacket.

Next is Victoria from Vancouver. Even the wives were envious of her petite figure.

This little bombshell is Jill. Jill entertained us on several occasions with her own lovely voice. Jill is another Vancouver girl.

This was the seventh year for a really friendly and fun-time get together. The event is called, "Esprit." It is held in a small community called Port Angeles, Washington. Port Angeles, is West Northwest and about a two and one half hour drive from Seattle, Washington. It is a small logging community, and believe it or not, the cross-dressing community is very welcome. Not only are we welcome, it is the big event of the year for the locals.

When the ladies come downstairs the banquet room always has a warm welcome from the locals. The bar downstairs has standing room only. Many of the gals have made friends with the residents and correspond with them through out the year. Most of the local wives come to see what's new in the fashion world, as well as who has new hair! The wife of the chief of police, went as far as to design a sweat shirt for the lady's saying, "Class knows no gender." How's that for small town hospitality!

One of everybody's favorite thing to do is the day trip to Victoria Island, British

We caught Jill taking a break between shows.

Here are two of my favorite attendees. I've had the great pleasure of knowing Betty and Rachel for seven years now. They are one of the loveliest couples I have ever met. Betty has supported Rachel in her cross-dressing for 47 years now.

Going from one extreme to another, this tramp is my good friend Alexis! Trust me, she would be hurt if I did not acknowledge her status as "Queen Tramp."

This is our tall, leggy Texas gal again Terri.

Brenda was a class act in her basic black.

Rene was one of the daring few to sport a strapless dress.

Columbia. It's about an hour and half ferry ride. Upon arriving, the ladies are picked up by horse and drawn carriages and taken to the world famous "Empress Hotel" for high tea. Then it is on to the "Buchard Gardens." This is approximately 12 acres which contains some of the most lush gardens I have ever seen. The fountains are a rival for anything in Rome!

There was also a day trip to an area called, "Hurricane Ridge." This is an amazingly beautiful mountain range in the "Olympia Mountains" of Washington. In twenty-five minutes you can go from a warm and balmy 75 degrees to a crisp snow covered mountain.

There was a luncheon fashion show on Saturday to premier the all new "Jim Bridges";

Dress Line. I'll tell more about this in another article. One of the highlights to this event is the Saturday night pajama party after the bar closes. Unfortunately, everyone was camera shy so I was unable to get pictures of some of those baby-doll nighties. All in all, this is one of my favorites to attend.

Ann'e was a vision of understated elegance in her native dress. Ann'e is another of the ladies attending from Vancouver.

Always the ham, with a great smile, and time for the camera is my dear friend Judy. Judy has been the president of "Emerald City Club" for many years, and is very involved in community outreach.

This is Karen from the Seattle area. She was responsible for planning and overseeing most of this year's "Esprit."

One of the older organizations in the transgendered community is "Tri-Ess," The Society for the Second Self. This organization was formed by Virginia Prince and Carol Beecroft in the late sixties, early seventies. The organization was formed for heterosexual cross-dressers to express themselves and expand their knowledge on the cross-dressing lifestyle.

Over the years there have been many charter groups founded under the "National Organization." The "National Organization" has a Board of Directors that helps coordinate projects and governs the "Tri-Ess National Organization." They are responsible for the national holiday "en femme" every year in mid November and also puts out a quarterly magazine called, "Femme Mirror." They also have a membership directory and constantly update it.

Over the years "Tri-Ess" has grown, and has reached out, and began working with spouses. This program has grown over the years and has even hosted a special convention for spouses. They deal with the special needs of the spouse. There have been many spouse groups started around the country by "Tri-Ess Chapter."

Couples group get-togethers is another area that has grown out of "Tri-Ess" over the past few years, and has continually grown and helped couples relate and get out and meet others. They also host a big sister program to try to get the new members someone they can relate to and grow in their new lifestyle, and be more active in the "Tri-Ess" organization. Each individual chapter is run by its leadership and in many cases has interjected new things into their programs to help their chapters grow.

Over the years there has been a lot of talk of discrimination because "Tri-Ess" is setup for the heterosexual cross-dresser, and their spouses and families. There has been a lot of criticism that they are discriminating. We hear this a lot, but overall if you really look at the diversity in the community, no one group is physically able to put together a program and make everyone happy. So it is good to have people who are willing to take a burden and try to reach out to special segments of the community and make things begin to happen.

Our community has grown a lot over the last ten years and it is because of organizations like "Tri-Ess," who have went out there and helped get people to start coming out and expressing themselves. If you want more information you can contact the "National Tri-Ess" at: Tri-Ess, 8880 Bellaire B2 #104, Houston, TX 77036. Phone (713) 988-8064, Fax (713) 520-9243.

GENDER expression

They can give you information on "Tri-Ess" and provide you with information on a local "Tri-Ess" chapter in your area, and who you need to contact if you are interested in becoming a member. They have done a lot of research and work with the professional community. They try to deal with a number of important subjects that are part of every cross-dresser's life. Things like:

- *Why do I cross-dress?
- *Is cross-dressing a sexual phenomena?
- *What type of people cross-dress?
- *Can cross-dressing be cured?
- *Cross-dressers and their wives.
- *Cross-dressers and their children.
- *Looking for support.

Learning about each of these areas of information can be very helpful in dealing with your transgendered lifestyle, and help you in making your day to day life as a cross-dresser more enriching.

"Tri-Ess" has a lot of good information they put out including the "Femme Mirror," that is put out quarterly, and a complete coded directory of all members who belong to the "National Tri-Ess Organization." This is another organization who is out there working everyday to reach out and help people like you.

As I have mentioned, each year "Tri-Ess" holds its holiday "en femme." It is rotated around the country to give all "Tri-Ess" members a chance to attend and be a part of the organization and have a chance to meet others. They always try to hold different outings and events that interest the members of "Tri-Ess." All the activities are educational and fun.

I'll never forget my first holiday "en femme." It was in San Francisco and it was really a lot of fun. I was good friends with Diane Ingram and Terrie Fisher of "Alpha Zeda," who were hosting the convention. I volunteered to help out and really got the experience of my life. We went up to San Francisco a couple days early. We didn't know how good of a turn out we were going to get because of the earthquake they had had the month before, but we decided to have it anyway, and we ended up with about 60 participants. We had a trip to one of the wineries one day and went out to "Alcatraz Prison." One evening we went to "La Cage" and bought out the house, so we had quite a show.

We had one social at the "Shay Maleay," and I met a lot of the people from the San Francisco area that I had been corresponding with.

The final night we held a Las Vegas night and donated the money to the "Make A Wish" charity. They also had a number of seminars and make-up workshops by Jim Bridges. It was amazing to watch the difference before and after it was done.

Over the years the convention has grown. The one they held in 1993 in the Los Angeles area and had over 200 people in attendance, and each year they continue to reach out to new people. Over the last ten years I have had a chance to visit with many of the "Tri-Ess" groups around the country, and I have found that each group, even though it is a member, has their own individuality, and they have their programs and ways that they reach out to people in the community. I have been a member of "Tri-Ess" since the mid-seventies, and have also been involved in several other organizations that are also doing work in the community.

I do hope these articles help to inform you on what is out there and what they have to offer to people in the transgendered community. Maybe "Tri-Ess" is not what you are looking for, but there are a number of other organizations out there that I will try to cover in the future. So watch for future articles.

If you have any questions about "Tri-Ess" or other organizations, feel free to drop me a note and I'll get back with an answer.

Seven Year Itch Party

To everything turn, turn, turn. There is a rhyme and a reason for the changes, good and not so good, in our lives. This evening was a time for celebration, along with a little sadness. Many times, in the past, I have done good things and not been given credit for them. A vow I made was to always try to tell my friends good words about their successes and achievements.

Seven years ago I asked Robert the owner/manager of the "Queen Mary Show Lounge," if I could put on an event called, "On The Scene Nite" in the back bar of the club, and Miss Marla working it.

"Hey Debbie, you go girl!"

Miss Gina showed up to celebrate.

TV Epic's own, Tasha La Blush and Miss Belle on the scene.

"Hey Trish, looking hot doll!"

Santa Monica Sharon and Mistress Sophia making whoopee.

he was all for it. I then asked a friend to be my partner in this attempt to offer the transgendered community an on-going party. The red carpet went out to "ladies" new to the scene, and out of towners.

Three years later my partner said to me, "Marlayna, we took a chip and dip affair and made it something that people talk about around the world. Now our partnership has become business and we should focus on that."

My focus has and always will be, to do my best to nurture and support my many friends including you. I did not ask for any compensation at the club for the first year and many called me a fool. To me the business end of what I do goes with the territory, and I do well at it.

During the party my ex-partner showed up, as she requested that this night be her "Going Away Party." As we posed for a photo, Tasha La Blush threw this comment at us. "Yeah, you two got that seven year itch."

It did hit home, and I realized the truth in the line, "Death is not the only finality." Time marches on and things change. I turn, turn, and turn and see new beginnings. I also look back and have to say to my ex-partner, "For seven years we did good for ourselves and most important our community. You did your best and deserve credit and thanks from all for your contributions to the events we sponsored. The time has come for me to keep the boat on a steady course. I will do my best, and I will always give you good words, credit, and thanks for being there."

Turn, turn, turn.

New lady on the scene.

Lovely Tess showed up for the big party.

Miss Lori flew down from Alaska to attend.

We know how frustrating it can be to lose a picture by sending it to an irresponsible person or couple who neglect to return it. That's why Pathway Communications is now offering a special service for our readers which will safeguard your pictures from loss, and it's as easy as 1, 2, 3!
